OCS Accused of Gambling with Food Supply

SINGLE CONTROL FAVORED FOR PRODUCE GOALS

Truman Committee Claims Farm Recommendations Are Being Ignored

Responsibility For Limit On Ag Machinery Placed Up To Bureau

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—The Truman Committee today charged the WPB's Office of Civilian Supply with gambling "dangerously and unwisely with our nation's food supply," and said that the OCS would be to blame if American agriculture fails to meet 1943 and 1944 production goals.

At the same time, the committee, in a report submitted to the senate, recommended establishment of a single control over food goals to be set and the methods of achieving them.

The committee declared that the civilian supply office disregarded recommendations of the agriculture department and the WPB farm machine and equipment branch for higher quotas of farm machinery for 1943 which, it said, intensified the agricultural problem.

No Adequate Survey

The Office of Civilian Supply, the report stated, "made no independent comprehensive survey in farm areas. . . .But purported to use findings from surveys furnished to it by the agriculture department.

"Its results, however, were apparently not based on the department's findings, but on a formula which was developed for it by a professor of agricultural engineering.

"The effect of the farm labor shortage has been intensified by the drastic limitation on production of farm machinery in 1943. Responsibility for this limitation rests squarely on the Office of Civilian Supply. . . .This office erroneously regarded farm machinery as semi-essential."

Recommendations Made

Other recommendations made by the committee included:

1. That Food Administrator Wickard's determination of non-food materials required for the food production program be given maximum consideration in allotting materials.

2. Elimination of the plan of concentration of farm machinery production.

3. Development of a new and more adequate program for farm machinery production for the year beginning July 1, 1943 and its issuance as soon as requirements are ascertained.

Declaring that an adequate supply of farm machinery is essential to maintain an increased food production, the committee said that "before weapons can be produced or used, we must first have food."

The committee said the American farmer must overcome "tremendous obstacles in attempting

Slow Time Hope Fades For State

Sentiment For Change Rampant But Appears Doomed To Failure

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21—Hopes of Ohioans to have their clocks turned back an hour to "slow time" were deadlocked today although senate leaders predicted they would smash on the twin rocks of law and patriotism.

Although sentiment continued rampant in the 95th Ohio General Assembly for a time change, and witnesses before a night hearing of the senate judiciary committee on the subject favored a change with one exception, the administration-sponsored campaign to make haste slowly again bore fruit, and senate leaders declared that the upper body at least would be "courageous" enough to defeat a time change proposal by the time one could be brought up for a vote.

Another week's delay was assured when the senate adopted a resolution asking Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert for a written opinion on the legality of the time change, and to report back to the senate by January 27 "if at all possible."

This, coupled with the invitation to Donald Nelson to come to Columbus and explain the War Production Board's objections to a time change in Ohio, will postpone a vote until the days lengthen into Spring and the immediate urgency of the measure is lost.

One spokesman admitted that it had been "a narrow squeak," and stated that, in his opinion, the house woud have stampeded a time-change measure on its way toward passage yesterday had not the senate approved the once-sidetracked invitation for Nelson to appear.

The senate's highest leaders expressed conviction that Herbert's forthcoming ruling would be against a time change. They pointed out that the Interstate Commerce Commission, in 1936, established the western boundary of the eastern time belt along the Ohio-Indiana line, under powers delegated to it by Congress. These powers, it was held, cannot be usurped by state legislative action.

LOVE SHOTS OF EX-MOVIE STAR ROCK NOB HILL

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21 — Eyebrowc on aristocratic Nob Hill today were still a full inch above normal.

There still was much discussion of the shooting scrape that involved an ex-movie queen and the millionaire lumberman she claimed had jilted her.

As for the central characters themselves, they moved out of the limelight and probably tried to forget the episode that all but rocked "the Hill."

Madge Bellamy the still gorgeous ex-movie heroine, had promised a judge she would never again point—or shoot—a pistol at Millionaire A. Stanwood Murphy and was at liberty on bail although she still was charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Meanwhile Murphy, around whose person Miss Bellamy showered three bullets, just didn't want to talk about the affair at all. He was spending his time with his recently acquired wife, a former Parisian model and ex-wife of a multi-millionaire Arizona cowboy.

The gun play occurred at the door of the hallowed Old Pacific Union club when the redwood lumber baron strolled out to his car. Three shots rang out: Murphy reentered the club—fast—and went home the same way.

Erroneously called to the scene, members of the homicide squad were calmly told by Miss Bellamy that she didn't mean to hit Mr. Murphy—only to "scare the gizzard out of him." He had promised to marry her, she said, and instead married the other woman.

Three goggle-eyed witnesses agreed that Miss Bellamy probably succeeded in her scare attempt.

Plane Crashes East of City; Pilot is Killed

An airplane crashed on the John Heffner farm, three miles east of Circleville, shortly before 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon and the pilot was reported killed. An army plane was reported missing from the Lockbourne airport.

Mrs. Mary Rittinger, who lives near the Heffner farm, said that the plane appeared over her property and the motor sounded "fuzzy." The craft almost struck a fence, but gained altitude and disappeared toward the Heffner property where it crashed into a patch of timber.

Bryan Custer, deputy sheriff, was among the first at the scene of the accident. He put in a call for the Auxiliary Police force of the County Defense Council.

The State Highway Department soon had a crew on the scene and the immediate vicinity of the plane was roped off from spectators. The highways soon were filled with autos of spectators. Word of the accident spread rapidly through the city and county.

Shortly before the crash three planes were flying in loose formation over Circleville. It was not known whether or not the crashed plane was from this group.

The crashed ship was spotted shortly after the accident by a big bomber. Deputy Custer called Lockbourne and gave word of the accident. It was a short time later that the bomber appeared, flying high. It passed over the scene, turned and came in low, then headed back toward the air base.

Labor to Offer Solid Front Favoring Hoist in Social Security Tax

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 21—Labor is prepared to present a united front to congress on the subject of increasing present Social Security taxes from four percent of payrolls to 10 percent it was revealed today.

With officials of the CIO already on record as favoring an increase in Social Security payroll taxes in exchange for an expanded protection, A. F. of L. President William Green announced yesterday that his organization also favored the increase. He stipulated however that amendments be adopted by congress liberalizing the act in conformity with the federation's "cradle to grave" protection policy, and along the Social Security objectives of President Roosevelt.

The executive council of the A. F. of L. in its Winter session here, directed the officers of the federation to place such a bill before congress at the earliest possible moment.

It was indicated that the final changes of the A. F. of L.'s new Social Security bill will be made following conferences next week at the first meeting of the Anglo-American trade union committee.

The broadened Social Security measure according to the council should incorporate the following major objective: coverage of all employed persons in the United States not now provided for by local, state or federal laws and their families; increase in old age annuity benefits; standardization of unemployment compensation benefits on a single nationwide basis; health and hospitalization insurance for workers and their families and unemployment insurance for servicemen.

The council declared that this broad program will have to be financed by higher taxes and added that the workers will be glad to pay these taxes because "they know it will protect them against the hazards of the future."

NORWEGIANS DEPORTED

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 21—A large group of Norwegian political prisoners has been sent by boat to Germany, reports from Oslo said today. Among those deported were 52 men from the concentration camp at Grini. More than half a dozen military prisoners, including a Major Abildsgaards were aboard the ship. Many residents of Oslo, arrested for viewing forbidden films were deported.

25,000 TONS OF AXIS BATTLER GIVEN TO FLEET

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Jan 21—The new 25,000-ton aircraft carrier Yorktown slid down the ways today to replace the 19,900-ton "Floating Airfield" of that name which was lost during the furious Midway battle last June in which American forces smashed a Japanese invasion armada of 80 ships.

Sponsor of the new warship was Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, who also christened the original Yorktown when it was launched in the same shipyard April 4, 1936.

The new Yorktown is the eighth first-line carrier to be launched since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. In addition, an undisclosed number of carriers converted from merchant ships has been launched and placed in commission.

WAVE HITS BOAT; ONLY TWO OF 17 SAILORS ESCAPE

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 21—Only two members of a 17-man crew aboard the 150-foot coastal steamer Northolm were alive today to tell how their vessel sank when towering seas struck the craft broadside west of Vancouver island.

The two survivors, First Officer Ray Perr and Seaman A. Henry Gierbrandt, were rescued from a lifeboat in which four others were found dead. Nine seamen went down with the ship and two others were washed overboard from the lifeboat, according to an announcement by Union Steamships, Ltd., owner of the vessel.

BACK-TO-WORK MOVE STARTS IN COAL FIELDS

Need To Use Troops Passes With Sudden Change In Stand Of Miners

STRIKE VIRTUALLY ENDS

Total Of Idle Shaved From Peak Of 25,000 Down To Fewer Than 9,000

WILKES BARRE, Jan. 21 — A general back-to-work movement was underway today throughout the Pennsylvania coal fields as additional striking mine locals capitulated to the ultimatum of President Roosevelt and voted to return to the pits.

The Presidential ultimatum which ordered the strikers to end their walkout by one p. m. today was backed by Gov. Edward Martin who warned the strikers that he would not hesitate to call out the state guard and state police in order to force reopening of the mines. The wildcat strike already has caused the nation loss of more than 1,000,000 tons of hard coal.

Because of the sudden change in the miners' stand it appeared that the necessity for sending troops to the scene to take over operations may not develop.

Strike Crushed

A series of back-to-work resolutions adopted by various locals of the United Mine Workers union yesterday was culminated last night when the Woodward local of the Glen Alden Coal Company voted to end the 22-day-old walkout. The action of this local which has a membership of 1,600 was taken to mean that the strike had been virtually crushed.

The men are returning to work with the understanding that their protest over the 50 cent increase in dues will be considered in the regular channels. International officers of the United Mine Workers Union also have given members a pledge they will seek a substantial wage increase at the expiration of the current contract in April.

Only 9,000 Out

From a high of some 23,500 idle men the number still officially on strike has been shaved to 9,000 or less. It is expected that additional striking locals will return to work today.

A third government move against the striking miners was

MURDER CHARGE FILED AGAINST FOWLER'S WIFE

Warrant charging first degree murder of Guy B. Fowler, 47, of Columbus, was filed Wednesday evening against Fowler's widow, Norma (Nannie) Bates Fowler, 26, a fugitive. The charge was filed in the office of George L. Kimball, Clinton township, Franklin county. It was prepared by the office of Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett.

Mrs. Fowler, native of Circleville, has not been seen since last Friday, the day her husband was presumably shot to death in his home in north Columbus. His body was found in a cedar chest which he had given his wife for Christmas. A shotgun, loaned to Mrs. Fowler by her father, John Bates, of Circleville, the day before Christmas and believed to be the death weapon, was identified Wednesday afternoon by Mr. Bates.

Twenty-three shotgun shells, presumably from a box of 24 from which the shell which killed Fowler was taken, were turned over Thursday to the Franklin county sheriff's office. The shells were found scattered near the home of Fowler last Saturday by a passerby. The twenty-fourth shell, probably the one which killed Fowler, has not been found.

Meanwhile, search continues for Mrs. Fowler. Local police and sheriff's office are keeping a watch for her, thinking that she may come here to visit relatives.

Unified Command to Combat U-Boat Menace Considered at Capital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—There was some talk in diplomatic circles in Washington today of the possibility of establishing an Anglo-American unified command to direct the counter-offensive against the German submarine menace in the Atlantic.

There were indications that the British would welcome such a move, especially if the job were given to Admiral Sir Percy Noble, head of the British admiralty delegation in Washington, and the man who directed the anti-submarine campaign in the British Isles before he came to this country.

The view prevailed strongly in official as well as diplomatic quarters that the U. S. and Great Britain must find a way of overcoming the German submarine menace, which is now regarded as the most serious obstacle to ultimate victory over the axis powers.

Major Offensive

The German submarine campaign in the Atlantic is considered to be the only successful major offensive in which the axis powers are now engaged.

That campaign is so successful that men like Admiral Noble do not hesitate to say that the allies may not be able to win the war unless they can overcome the submarine menace. Director Elmer Davis of the OWI disclosed that German subs in the Atlantic have sunk more allied ships so far this month than for the same number of days in December.

The fact that the U. S. and Great Britain are building more ships than the axis submarines are sinking is not seen as any solution to the problem. As long as the shipping losses continue as heavy as they are at present, it is considered extremely difficult for the allies to carry out large scale military operations abroad.

Losses Are Heavy

Not only are the cargoes lost, but a good many of the crews of the allied ships are lost and, it is pointed out, the latter are not as easy to replace as the ships.

Admiral Noble, in a special press conference in Washington, emphasized that the submarine menace cannot be beaten "by too much too late."

"Every ship which is lost at sea lengthens the war," he said. "There is only one way to shorten the conflict—that is to beat the U-boat. It must be done quickly. It will take all our strength, all our resources, and all our determination to do it."

Admiral Noble said that in his opinion the only answer to the submarine menace is more escort vessels with well trained crews and efficient team work between surface vessels and patrol planes.

As evidence of the fact that convoys can get safely through to their destination when properly protected, Admiral Noble said that the Anglo-American expeditionary force that moved into French North Africa was the greatest armada in history and yet not one ship was lost until after it had entered the submarine infested waters of the Mediterranean. He added that only one ship was lost before the vessels had cast anchor off the North African coast.

BATTLE BRAVERY 23 YEARS AGO JUST REWARDED

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 — Lieut. Col. William R. Silvey will receive the silver star medal for "bravery of the highest order" today in recognition of his actions in World War I, over 23 years ago.

In presenting the medal, Brig. Gen. Kenneth P. Lord, chief of staff of the eastern defense command, will read the commendation written in France in 1919. At that time Col. Silvey was a lieutenant and aide-de-camp to Brig. Gen. William R. Dahiell, commander of the eleventh infantry brigade. He earned the citation for bravery both in the Vosges mountains and Gerardmer sector and in the Meuse Argonne.

World War I records are reviewed from time to time by the War Department, it was explained, and decorations are awarded when circumstances to merit them are discovered.

DISCOVERER OF LEWISITE DIES

Gas Invented Too Late For Last War, Finally Sunk Deep In Ocean

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 21—Science today lost one of its noted figures in the death of Prof. Winford Lee Lewis, inventor of "Lewisite," described by many authorities as the deadliest of all war gases.

Lewis, 64, died in Evanston hospital from injuries he suffered last Monday in a fall at his Evanston home.

He was a colonel in the chemical warfare service in the first World War and had perfected his invention of Lewisite toward the end of that conflict.

Plans were being made to use it on a large scale in the gas warfare then raging on the European battle fronts, but the Armistice came before the plans were cardied into effect.

Similar to mustard gas, but far more deadly, Lewisite was said to be so lethal in its effects that a single drop on the skin probably would be fatal.

Prof. Lewis once sniffed a minute quantity of the gas. He was knocked unconscious, bled for 10 days and was in bed three weeks.

Although experts were not in entire agreement, some declared the gas was so deadly that 10 airplanes loaded with it could destroy all life in a single large city — like Berlin.

Several thousand tons had been manufactured by the time the first World War ended. Eventually it was dumped overboard 50 miles at sea in water three miles deep.

The war department retained the formula, however, and presumably is prepared to use it in the event Hitler in desperation decides to launch gas warfare against the Allied armies.

Prof. Lewis formerly was head of the department of chemistry at Northwestern university. He started work on the Lewisite gas

New German Attempt To Raid London Balked By Spitfires

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21— U. S. army troops under command of Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch have relieved the battle-worn Marines on Guadalcanal, the navy announced today in a communique which also disclosed that American fliers have damaged another Jap destroyer and downed eight enemy planes.

The navy announced that most of the U. S. Marines, who spearheaded the American advance into the southeastern Solomons last August, have been withdrawn and have been replaced by army detachments.

All of the American ground forces on Guadalcanal, presently engaged in bitter fighting with the Japanese west and southwest of Henderson airfield, have been placed under the command of Gen. Patch.

BULLETIN

LONDON, Jan. 21— A strong force of Royal Air Force medium bombers and fighters crossed the southeast coast this afternoon in the direction of Dieppe.

By International News Service

Battle of Libya appeared to be drawing to its close today as remnants of the once mighty Afrika Korps fled westward toward Tunisia under a heavy pounding from allied bombing planes. Units of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's shattered army were fleeing from Tripoli as the vanguards of the British Eighth Army swept past Homs, 65 miles east of Tripoli on the coastal road, and overran Tarhuna, 45 miles southeast of the port on an inland desert highway.

It was evident that the spearheads of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's army are hot on the heels of the axis rearguard, and that a battle must develop soon if Rommel attempts to make a stand at Tripoli.

But the weight of military opinion was that the Nazi commander would do no more than fight a delaying action to permit the bulk of his troops and mechanized equipment to escape into Tunisia to join the axis armies in defense of their last African foothold.

In the effort to keep a corridor open for Rommel's retreat, axis tank and infantry forces attacked viciously in the Pont Du Fahs area of southeast Tunisia and succeeded in forcing French lines back several miles.

Need To Use Troops Passes With Sudden Change In Stand Of Miners

STRIKE VIRTUALLY ENDS

Total Of Idle Shaved From Peak Of 25,000 Down To Fewer Than 9,000

WILKES BARRE, Jan. 21 — A general back-to-work movement was underway today throughout the Pennsylvania coal fields as additional striking mine locals capitulated to the ultimatum of President Roosevelt and voted to return to the pits.

The Presidential ultimatum which ordered the strikers to end their walkout by one p. m. today was backed by Gov. Edward Martin who warned the strikers that he would not hesitate to call out the state guard and state police in order to force reopening of the mines. The wildcat strike already has caused the nation loss of more than 1,000,000 tons of hard coal.

Because of the sudden change in the miners' stand it appeared that the necessity for sending troops to the scene to take over operations may not develop.

Strike Crushed

A series of back-to-work resolutions adopted by various locals of the United Mine Workers union yesterday was culminated last night when the Woodward local of the Glen Alden Coal Company voted to end the 22-day-old walkout. The action of this local which has a membership of 1,600 was taken to mean that the strike had been virtually crushed.

The men are returning to work with the understanding that their protest over the 50 cent increase in dues will be considered in the regular channels. International officers of the United Mine Workers Union also have given members a pledge they will seek a substantial wage increase at the expiration of the current contract in April.

Only 9,000 Out

From a high of some 23,500 idle men the number still officially on strike has been shaved to 9,000 or less. It is expected that additional striking locals will return to work today.

A third government move against the striking miners was

MURDER CHARGE FILED AGAINST FOWLER'S WIFE

Warrant charging first degree murder of Guy B. Fowler, 47, of Columbus, was filed Wednesday evening against Fowler's widow, Norma (Nannie) Bates Fowler, 26, a fugitive. The charge was filed in the office of George L. Kimball, Clinton township, Franklin county. It was prepared by the office of Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett.

Mrs. Fowler, native of Circleville, has not been seen since last Friday, the day her husband was presumably shot to death in his home in north Columbus. His body was found in a cedar chest which he had given his wife for Christmas. A shotgun, loaned to Mrs. Fowler by her father, John Bates, of Circleville, the day before Christmas and believed to be the death weapon, was identified Wednesday afternoon by Mr. Bates.

Twenty-three shotgun shells, presumably from a box of 24 from which the shell which killed Fowler was taken, were turned over Thursday to the Franklin county sheriff's office. The shells were found scattered near the home of Fowler last Saturday by a passerby. The twenty-fourth shell, probably the one which killed Fowler, has not been found.

Meanwhile, search continues for Mrs. Fowler. Local police and sheriff's office are keeping a watch for her, thinking that she may come here to visit relatives.

Unified Command to Combat U-Boat Menace Considered at Capital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—There was some talk in diplomatic circles in Washington today of the possibility of establishing an Anglo-American unified command to direct the counter-offensive against the German submarine menace in the Atlantic.

There were indications that the British would welcome such a move, especially if the job were given to Admiral Sir Percy Noble, head of the British admiralty delegation in Washington, and the man who directed the anti-submarine campaign in the British Isles before he came to this country.

The view prevailed strongly in official as well as diplomatic quarters that the U. S. and Great Britain must find a way of overcoming the German submarine menace, which is now regarded as the most serious obstacle to ultimate victory over the axis powers.

Major Offensive

The German submarine campaign in the Atlantic is considered to be the only successful major offensive in which the axis powers are now engaged.

That campaign is so successful that men like Admiral Noble do not hesitate to say that the allies may not be able to win the war unless they can overcome the submarine menace. Director Elmer Davis of the OWI disclosed that German subs in the Atlantic have sunk more allied ships so far this month than for the same number of days in December.

The fact that the U. S. and Great Britain are building more ships than the axis submarines are sinking is not seen as any solution to the problem. As long as the shipping losses continue as heavy as they are at present, it is considered extremely difficult for the allies to carry out large scale military operations abroad.

Losses Are Heavy

Not only are the cargoes lost, but a good many of the crews of the allied ships are lost and, it is pointed out, the latter are not as easy to replace as the ships.

Admiral Noble, in a special press conference in Washington, emphasized that the submarine menace cannot be beaten "by too much too late."

"Every ship which is lost at sea lengthens the war," he said. "There is only one way to shorten the conflict—that is to beat the U-boat. It must be done quickly. It will take all our strength, all our resources, and all our determination to do it."

Admiral Noble said that in his opinion the only answer to the submarine menace is more escort vessels with well trained crews and efficient team work between surface vessels and patrol planes.

As evidence of the fact that convoys can get safely through to their destination when properly protected, Admiral Noble said that the Anglo-American expeditionary force that moved into French North Africa was the greatest armada in history and yet not one ship was lost until after it had entered the submarine infested waters of the Mediterranean. He added that only one ship was lost before the vessels had cast anchor off the North African coast.

BATTLE BRAVERY 23 YEARS AGO JUST REWARDED

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 — Lieut. Col. William R. Silvey will receive the silver star medal for "bravery of the highest order" today in recognition of his actions in World War I, over 23 years ago.

In presenting the medal, Brig. Gen. Kenneth P. Lord, chief of staff of the eastern defense command, will read the commendation written in France in 1919. At that time Col. Silvey was a lieutenant and aide-de-camp to Brig. Gen. William R. Dahiell, commander of the eleventh infantry brigade. He earned the citation for bravery both in the Vosges mountains and Gerardmer sector and in the Meuse Argonne.

World War I records are reviewed from time to time by the War Department, it was explained, and decorations are awarded when circumstances to merit them are discovered.

DISCOVERER OF LEWISITE DIES

Gas Invented Too Late For Last War, Finally Sunk Deep In Ocean

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 21—Science today lost one of its noted figures in the death of Prof. Winford Lee Lewis, inventor of "Lewisite," described by many authorities as the deadliest of all war gases.

Lewis, 64, died in Evanston hospital from injuries he suffered last Monday in a fall at his Evanston home.

He was a colonel in the chemical warfare service in the first World War and had perfected his invention of Lewisite toward the end of that conflict.

Plans were being made to use it on a large scale in the gas warfare then raging on the European battle fronts, but the Armistice came before the plans were cardied into effect.

Similar to mustard gas, but far more deadly, Lewisite was said to be so lethal in its effects that a single drop on the skin probably would be fatal.

Prof. Lewis once sniffed a minute quantity of the gas. He was knocked unconscious, bled for 10 days and was in bed three weeks.

Although experts were not in entire agreement, some declared the gas was so deadly that 10 airplanes loaded with it could destroy all life in a single large city — like Berlin.

Several thousand tons had been manufactured by the time the first World War ended. Eventually it was dumped overboard 50 miles at sea in water three miles deep.

The war department retained the formula, however, and presumably is prepared to use it in the event Hitler in desperation decides to launch gas warfare against the Allied armies.

Prof. Lewis formerly was head of the department of chemistry at Northwestern university. He started work on the Lewisite gas

New German Attempt To Raid London Balked By Spitfires

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21— U. S. army troops under command of Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch have relieved the battle-worn Marines on Guadalcanal, the navy announced today in a communique which also disclosed that American fliers have damaged another Jap destroyer and downed eight enemy planes.

The navy announced that most of the U. S. Marines, who spearheaded the American advance into the southeastern Solomons last August, have been withdrawn and have been replaced by army detachments.

All of the American ground forces on Guadalcanal, presently engaged in bitter fighting with the Japanese west and southwest of Henderson airfield, have been placed under the command of Gen. Patch.

BULLETIN

LONDON, Jan. 21— A strong force of Royal Air Force medium bombers and fighters crossed the southeast coast this afternoon in the direction of Dieppe.

By International News Service

Battle of Libya appeared to be drawing to its close today as remnants of the once mighty Afrika Korps fled westward toward Tunisia under a heavy pounding from allied bombing planes. Units of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's shattered army were fleeing from Tripoli as the vanguards of the British Eighth Army swept past Homs, 65 miles east of Tripoli on the coastal road, and overran Tarhuna, 45 miles southeast of the port on an inland desert highway.

It was evident that the spearheads of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's army are hot on the heels of the axis rearguard, and that a battle must develop soon if Rommel attempts to make a stand at Tripoli.

But the weight of military opinion was that the Nazi commander would do no more than fight a delaying action to permit the bulk of his troops and mechanized equipment to escape into Tunisia to join the axis armies in defense of their last African foothold.

In the effort to keep a corridor open for Rommel's retreat, axis tank and infantry forces attacked viciously in the Pont Du Fahs area of southeast Tunisia and succeeded in forcing French lines back several miles.

AUTHOR, F. B. I. AGENTS KILLED IN AIR TRAGEDY

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21— War department announced today that 35 persons, including Eric Knight, famous novelist, two members of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and a state department employe were killed January 15 when a four engined airliner crashed in the jungles of Dutch Guiana.

Knight was the author of the best seller, "This Above All." He was a major in the army air corps.

Others killed included P. E. Foxworth, head of the FBI New York office, who directed the successful search for German saboteurs landed by submarine last June; H. D. Haberfeld, another FBI man, and O. E. Henryson of the state department, and William Hodson, New York welfare director.

stant attacks on troop transports. Tripoli and the airfield at Castel Benito, 10 miles to the south were bombed heavily.

British air and naval forces harassed enemy supply lines across the Mediterranean, sinking two more supply ships and damaging two others. Torpedo planes sank one vessel and damaged two off Tunisia, and another ship was sunk in the Aegean sea.

The mighty Soviet offensives against Kharkov and Rostov on the southern front smashed ahead at increased pace. Red army columns drew closer to Rostov, Nazi supply base on the lower Don, in crashing advances across river barriers.

Russians Cross Donetz

One force swept across the Donetz in a drive on Likhaya, rail junction 60 miles north of Rostov, while another army threatened the town from the east.

Russian columns driving along the Stalingrad-Krasnodar rail line below the Don, crossed the river Manych and were reported within a few miles of Salsk where a branch line runs northwest to Rostov, 100 miles away.

Several spearheads were driving on Kharkov, rich industrial capital of the Ukraine. One army moved on the city from Voronezh in a southwesterly direction and other forces smashed forward from points east and southeast.

Axis armies on the southern front were beginning to show signs of disintegration. Prisoners were taken in groups as high as 3,000, and the speed of the retreat was disclosed by the abandonment of huge stores of supplies and equipment.

Another Raid Blocked

As the casualty list mounted today in the German "horror bombing" of a London suburban school yesterday, Nazi bombers attempted to reach London again today but were turned back by swarms of spitfires. Some coastal areas were bombed with slight damage. Two raiders were shot down.

The enemy paid for yesterday's bombing of some 200 school children with the loss of 14 planes.

Forty-five children, all between the ages of seven and eleven, are known to be dead and 30 are missing. Seventy-seven are in hospitals and 65 received medical attention but have returned to their homes.

Allied bombers blasted Japanese bases north of Australia on a 1,300-mile arc from Amboina to New Britain island. Intermediate points on Timor and Aru islands and the New Guinea base of Lae also were raided heavily. The enemy made no retaliation.

Ground troops meanwhile continued mopping-up remnants of the Japanese invasion force in the Sanananda area.

A navy department communique today disclosed that 1,032 Japanese were slain in five days of recent fighting on Guadalcanal, and the extent of enemy casualties suggested that the scale of the action there is increasing.

British and American bombers heavily raided enemy objectives in Burma last night, the RAF striking a hard blow at the Japanese airdrome at Toungoo, 150 miles north of Rangoon, and the Americans blasting Thazi in the south, near the mouth of the Irrawaddy river.

Rail Junction Bombed

Big American bombers hammered railroad targets at Thazi, scoring many hits on a rail junction and storage sheds and starting large oil fires, a United States army air corps communique reported today.

British bombers also started many fires when their bombs burst on a main runway and dispersal areas of the Toungoo airport.

JOIN BATTLE OF FOOD, WICKARD URGES PATRIOTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—With farmers straining to meet soaring military, lend-lease and consumer food demands, Food Administrator Wickard today appealed to farmers and city folk alike to produce as much of their family food requirements as they can this Summer.

In his two-pronged program Wickard hopes to mobilize 6,000,000 farm families to grow vegetables for their own needs and twice that many city families to raise "victory gardens."

Pointing out that each consumer uses a ton of food a year, Wickard said the twin movement will lessen the strain on an overburdened transport system, save cans and release commercial stocks of fresh and processed vegetables for the allies and armed forces.

The campaign, he stated "offers a chance for those on the home front to get in the battle of food." It also, he pointed out, offers the opportunity to "keep these at home healthy and strong" and to add to consumer larders after canned goods rationing goes into effect.

Promising that victory gardens will get adequate fertilizer, Wickard asked city dwellers to give special attention to green and leafy vegetables, yellow vegetables—carrots, rutabagas and yellow squash—and tomatoes.

Anyone who has "a plot of sunny, open space with fertile soil" and everyone within commuting distance of a community garden should grow food this year, Wickard said.

COUNTERFEITER ROBS SAFES TO FINANCE CRIME

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21—Looks may be deceiving, but they didn't fool Secret Service agents of Philadelphia police insofar as the case of 67-year-old George W. Place was concerned.

The agents charge the fatherly looking man with being the "cleverest counterfeiter" in the country.

Local authorities accuse him of cracking the safes of 51 churches, libraries and schools in the Philadelphia area in order to purchase a "beautiful" counterfeiting outfit.

In fact, so good is his skill in etching, engraving, photography and safe cracking, that Secret Service men grudgingly admitted that the $100 worth of $10 bills Place was working on when arrested yesterday were "perfect."

The elderly man had a unique method of counterfeiting, it was pointed out. Instead of producing whole new $10 bills, he would soak a genuine bill in a solution and split it in two with fine instruments.

Then he photographed each side, made engravings from the photos and finally printed them. He pasted the genuine half on the counterfeit half and when passing it would present it with the genuine half up, thus cutting his chances of detection in half while doubling his money.

Neither Secret Service agents nor local authorities would tell how they came to suspect Place.

SINGLE CONTROL FAVORED FOR PRODUCE GOALS

Truman Committee Claims Farm Recommendations Are Being Ignored

to meet the 1943 food goals," adding that "one of the most serious of these is the farm labor shortage.

Farmer In Middle

"If the farmer loses his labor and at the same time is deprived of the machine tools which he needs to produce his crops, his plight will be desperate. We must not now willfully and deliberately create a shortage of the farmers' machine tools. We should take warning from the unfortunate experience in 1940 and 1941 when shortages existed in machine tools for the production of combat weapons."

The Civilian Supply Office assumption that "most farmers, by making repairs and resorting to makeshifts, can keep up a substantial production for a year or so," a "short-sighted policy," adding:

"We cannot lower our sights on food goals to such a brief period of time. Even if the war is won this year, winning of the peace will require the feeding of vast populations of large areas devastated by the axis powers. Planning an adequate food program now may well be the determining factor in enabling the world to return to decent and right living."

Single Control Urged

The report said "the extended wrangling over the 1943 program between the various governmental agencies establishes the need for a single control over the food goals to be set and the methods of achieving them" adding that the appointment of Agriculture Secretary Wickard as food administrator "is a step in the right direction."

"The committee believes that Donald Nelson, chairman of the war production board, should see to it that the food administrator's recommendations are not lightly overruled," the report stated.

WAY PAVED FOR RATIONING MORE ITEMS OF FOOD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 —Consumers today faced the possibility that, "if necessary," condensed and evaporated milk, jellies and preserves, picgles and relishes processed fish, shell fish and food containing meat will be rationed in the near future.

Food Administrator Wickard, in his food directive No. 1, gave the Office of Price Administration legal authority to retaion these foods, along with the recently announced rationing of canned, dried, dehydrated and frozen fruits and vegetables, soups and baby foods.

However, both Wickard and OPA Chief Prentiss Brown pointed out that the rationing of the newly named products has not been ordered and probably will not be ordered for several months.

Brown said the OPA would collect information on the stocks of these products available in the hands of grocers and wholesalers.

There is no serious shortage of canned milk, agriculture department officials said, pointing out that the department has large stocks of evaporated and condensed milk which can be given to consumers.

BACK-TO-WORK MOVE STARTS IN COAL FIELDS

made yesterday when the local unions were ordered by Pennsylvania authorities to submit the names of "die-hards" among the miners and report on their attitude with regard to returning to work. This was interpreted that steps would be taken to prosecute recalcitrants.

Some 1,800 Lehigh Valley workers also voted to return to work today. Other striking locals who voted to return to the pits included the Lance Colliery, Nottingham, No. 20 tunnel, Woodward and South Wilkes Barre locals of Glen Alden.

The Buttonwood and Huber locals of Glen Alden held a house-to-house canvass last night to arrange for the return of the men today but results will not be known until the mine begins operation. The Buttonwood local employs 1,000 men and the Huber local 1,600.

Meanwhile the UMW warned the remaining strikers to return to work or face expulsion from the union. Since the union has a closed shop agreement this would mean loss of their jobs if they refuse to capitulate.

BUTCHER FOILED WHEN U. S. BUYS FARMER'S COWS

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Jan. 21—Agents of the farm security administration today moved to dispose of the remainder of the herd of 25 Holstein heifers which were purchased outright from a North Marshall township farmer to save them from the butcher.

It was estimated the purchase, first of its kind by the federal government, will save about 69,000 quarts of milk which the cows produce annually.

Edgar Herbert, operator of a 300-acre farm near Siegersville, explained he was forced to dispose of the cows for $1590 because he couldn't get labor to care for them.

"I used to have four hired men and my two sons," he said. "Now both my sons are in the armed forces and I'm down to one hired man."

FSA officials have found new homes for 12 of the cows and expect to place the others with dairymen who can handle them. The government makes no money on the deal, since the animals are resold on a cost-plus-transportation basis.

AFRIKA KORPS' REMNANTS RUN INTO TUNISIA

Rommel's Once-Great Unit May Give Up Tripoli Without Struggle

stant attacks on troop transports. Tripoli and the airfield at Castel Benito, 10 miles to the south were bombed heavily.

British air and naval forces harassed enemy supply lines across the Mediterranean, sinking two more supply ships and damaging two others. Torpedo planes sank one vessel and damaged two off Tunisia, and another ship was sunk in the Aegean sea.

The mighty Soviet offensives against Kharkov and Rostov on the southern front smashed ahead at increased pace. Red army columns drew closer to Rostov, Nazi supply base on the lower Don, in crashing advances across river barriers.

Russians Cross Donetz

One force swept across the Donetz in a drive on Likhaya, rail junction 60 miles north of Rostov, while another army threatened the town from the east.

Russian columns driving along the Stalingrad-Krasnodar rail line below the Don, crossed the river Manych and were reported within a few miles of Salsk where a branch line runs northwest to Rostov, 100 miles away.

Several spearheads were driving on Kharkov, rich industrial capital of the Ukraine. One army moved on the city from Voronezh in a southwesterly direction and other forces smashed forward from points east and southeast.

Axis armies on the southern front were beginning to show signs of disintegration. Prisoners were taken in groups as high as 3,000, and the speed of the retreat was disclosed by the abandonment of huge stores of supplies and equipment.

Another Raid Blocked

As the casualty list mounted today in the German "horror bombing" of a London suburban school yesterday, Nazi bombers attempted to reach London again today but were turned back by swarms of spitfires. Some coastal areas were bombed with slight damage. Two raiders were shot down.

The enemy paid for yesterday's bombing of some 200 school children with the loss of 14 planes.

Forty-five children, all between the ages of seven and eleven, are known to be dead and 30 are missing. Seventy-seven are in hospitals and 65 received medical attention but have returned to their homes.

Allied bombers blasted Japanese bases north of Australia on a 1,300-mile arc from Amboina to New Britain island. Intermediate points on Timor and Aru islands and the New Guinea base of Lae also were raided heavily. The enemy made no retaliation.

Ground troops meanwhile continued mopping-up remnants of the Japanese invasion force in the Sanananda area.

A navy department communique today disclosed that 1,032 Japanese were slain in five days of recent fighting on Guadalcanal, and the extent of enemy casualties suggested that the scale of the action there is increasing.

British and American bombers heavily raided enemy objectives in Burma last night, the RAF striking a hard blow at the Japanese airdrome at Toungoo, 150 miles north of Rangoon, and the Americans blasting Thazi in the south, near the mouth of the Irrawaddy river.

Rail Junction Bombed

Big American bombers hammered railroad targets at Thazi, scoring many hits on a rail junction and storage sheds and starting large oil fires, a United States army air corps communique reported today.

British bombers also started many fires when their bombs burst on a main runway and dispersal areas of the Toungoo airport.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 — Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson today declared that the fall of axis-held Tripoli is only a matter of a few hours as he reported that the overall picture of the United Nations global war against Germany, Japan and Italy was "decidedly bright." The undersecretary in making a review of the war's progress hastened to add, however, that he was not predicting an early end to the conflict.

JOIN BATTLE OF FOOD, WICKARD URGES PATRIOTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—With farmers straining to meet soaring military, lend-lease and consumer food demands, Food Administrator Wickard today appealed to farmers and city folk alike to produce as much of their family food requirements as they can this Summer.

In his two-pronged program Wickard hopes to mobilize 6,000,000 farm families to grow vegetables for their own needs and twice that many city families to raise "victory gardens."

Pointing out that each consumer uses a ton of food a year, Wickard said the twin movement will lessen the strain on an overburdened transport system, save cans and release commercial stocks of fresh and processed vegetables for the allies and armed forces.

The campaign, he stated "offers a chance for those on the home front to get in the battle of food." It also, he pointed out, offers the opportunity to "keep these at home healthy and strong" and to add to consumer larders after canned goods rationing goes into effect.

Promising that victory gardens will get adequate fertilizer, Wickard asked city dwellers to give special attention to green and leafy vegetables, yellow vegetables—carrots, rutabagas and yellow squash—and tomatoes.

Anyone who has "a plot of sunny, open space with fertile soil" and everyone within commuting distance of a community garden should grow food this year, Wickard said.

Trial of the Ella Goddard will contest action was assigned Thursday by Judge Meeker Terwilliger for February 23 at 9:30 a. m. The will, involving an estate of approximately $150,000, is being contested by several heirs.

Efforts to settle the issue were made by several of the heirs, but several others, the court pointed out, seek to take the contest to trial.

COUNTERFEITER ROBS SAFES TO FINANCE CRIME

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21—Looks may be deceiving, but they didn't fool Secret Service agents of Philadelphia police insofar as the case of 67-year-old George W. Place was concerned.

The agents charge the fatherly looking man with being the "cleverest counterfeiter" in the country.

Local authorities accuse him of cracking the safes of 51 churches, libraries and schools in the Philadelphia area in order to purchase a "beautiful" counterfeiting outfit.

In fact, so good is his skill in etching, engraving, photography and safe cracking, that Secret Service men grudgingly admitted that the $100 worth of $10 bills Place was working on when arrested yesterday were "perfect."

The elderly man had a unique method of counterfeiting, it was pointed out. Instead of producing whole new $10 bills, he would soak a genuine bill in a solution and split it in two with fine instruments.

Then he photographed each side, made engravings from the photos and finally printed them. He pasted the genuine half on the counterfeit half and when passing it would present it with the genuine half up, thus cutting his chances of detection in half while doubling his money.

Neither Secret Service agents nor local authorities would tell how they came to suspect Place.

SINGLE CONTROL FAVORED FOR PRODUCE GOALS

Farmer In Middle

"If the farmer loses his labor and at the same time is deprived of the machine tools which he needs to produce his crops, his plight will be desperate. We must not now willfully and deliberately create a shortage of the farmers' machine tools. We should take warning from the unfortunate experience in 1940 and 1941 when shortages existed in machine tools for the production of combat weapons."

The Civilian Supply Office assumption that "most farmers, by making repairs and resorting to makeshifts, can keep up a substantial production for a year or so," a "short-sighted policy," adding:

"We cannot lower our sights on food goals to such a brief period of time. Even if the war is won this year, winning of the peace will require the feeding of vast populations of large areas devastated by the axis powers. Planning an adequate food program now may well be the determining factor in enabling the world to return to decent and right living."

Single Control Urged

The report said "the extended wrangling over the 1943 program between the various governmental agencies establishes the need for a single control over the food goals to be set and the methods of achieving them" adding that the appointment of Agriculture Secretary Wickard as food administrator "is a step in the right direction."

"The committee believes that Donald Nelson, chairman of the war production board, should see to it that the food administrator's recommendations are not lightly overruled," the report stated.

WAY PAVED FOR RATIONING MORE ITEMS OF FOOD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 —Consumers today faced the possibility that, "if necessary," condensed and evaporated milk, jellies and preserves, picgles and relishes processed fish, shell fish and food containing meat will be rationed in the near future.

Food Administrator Wickard, in his food directive No. 1, gave the Office of Price Administration legal authority to retaion these foods, along with the recently announced rationing of canned, dried, dehydrated and frozen fruits and vegetables, soups and baby foods.

However, both Wickard and OPA Chief Prentiss Brown pointed out that the rationing of the newly named products has not been ordered and probably will not be ordered for several months.

Brown said the OPA would collect information on the stocks of these products available in the hands of grocers and wholesalers.

There is no serious shortage of canned milk, agriculture department officials said, pointing out that the department has large stocks of evaporated and condensed milk which can be given to consumers.

BACK-TO-WORK MOVE STARTS IN COAL FIELDS

made yesterday when the local unions were ordered by Pennsylvania authorities to submit the names of "die-hards" among the miners and report on their attitude with regard to returning to work. This was interpreted that steps would be taken to prosecute recalcitrants.

Some 1,800 Lehigh Valley workers also voted to return to work today. Other striking locals who voted to return to the pits included the Lance Colliery, Nottingham, No. 20 tunnel, Woodward and South Wilkes Barre locals of Glen Alden.

The Buttonwood and Huber locals of Glen Alden held a house-to-house canvass last night to arrange for the return of the men today but results will not be known until the mine begins operation. The Buttonwood local employs 1,000 men and the Huber local 1,600.

Meanwhile the UMW warned the remaining strikers to return to work or face expulsion from the union. Since the union has a closed shop agreement this would mean loss of their jobs if they refuse to capitulate.

BUTCHER FOILED WHEN U. S. BUYS FARMER'S COWS

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Jan. 21—Agents of the farm security administration today moved to dispose of the remainder of the herd of 25 Holstein heifers which were purchased outright from a North Marshall township farmer to save them from the butcher.

It was estimated the purchase, first of its kind by the federal government, will save about 69,000 quarts of milk which the cows produce annually.

Edgar Herbert, operator of a 300-acre farm near Siegersville, explained he was forced to dispose of the cows for $1590 because he couldn't get labor to care for them.

"I used to have four hired men and my two sons," he said. "Now both my sons are in the armed forces and I'm down to one hired man."

FSA officials have found new homes for 12 of the cows and expect to place the others with dairymen who can handle them. The government makes no money on the deal, since the animals are resold on a cost-plus-transportation basis.

REDLEGS SEEK TO TRADE PAUL TO CUB OUTFIT

Derringer On Block, Says Report From Windy City; Outfielder Wanted

GILES REPORTED BUSY

Several Candidates Loom For Brewer Hill Crew During 1943

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—Renewed efforts to trade Paul Derringer, right-handed pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds, to the Chicago Cubs were reported today.

The proposed deal has been hanging fire since the Major League baseball meeting in Chicago last month, and recently Warren Giles, the Reds' general manager, was reported to have resumed his efforts to trade off Derringer for some of the Cubs' outfield material.

Giles was expected to remain close on the heels of James T. Gallagher, general manager of the Cubs, during the Spring training season in an effort to work out some deal. The Reds chose Bloomington, Ind., for their Spring training camp which is just a stone's throw from the Cubs' training grounds at French Lick Springs, Ind.

Another prospective Spring trade was reported when Bill Veeck, president of the Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association, indicated he was seeking mound material from the Cubs. Possible candidates for the Brewers pitching staff were Forrest Pressnel, Joe Berry and Ray Prim, a left-hander.

PECK FAVORING LAFAYETTE FOR INDIANS' CAMP

CLEVELAND, Jan. 21—Roger Peckinpaugh, vice-president of the Cleveland Indians awaited word today of official confirmation from Purdue university's athletic director, Guy Mackey, that university athletic facilities would be available to the Cleveland Tribesmen to start training March 15

Choosing the state that five other major leaguers chose for pre-season training, Peckinpaugh disclosed that Purdue had been first choice, but that Marietta, O., and other locations had been inspected because plans for the navy to send a large group to the university.

Site of a 300 by 160 foot field house, according to Peckinpaugh, it is "the last word in field houses." The arrival of the navy group has been postponed until April, and physical education schedules and morning workouts of the ball club would not conflict.

Plans are already under way for a series of exhibition games with Cincinnati Reds, training at Bloomington, Ind. Other workouts were expected with the other teams in the state; Chicago White Sox and Cubs at French Lick; Detroit Tigers at Evansville, and the Pittsburgh Pirates at Muncie.

BOYS OF UNCLE SAM'S FORCES WIN IN FIGHTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—The boys of the United States army today proved they can give it to any one, including their allies after capturing eight of ten bouts held last night among members of the United Nations.

Three of the triumphs won by the American doughboys were knockouts while two were technical K. O.'s. Lt. Arthur Donovan, United States maritime commission, and Lou Ambers, former world's lightweight champion, and also of the coast guard shared the referee's duty.

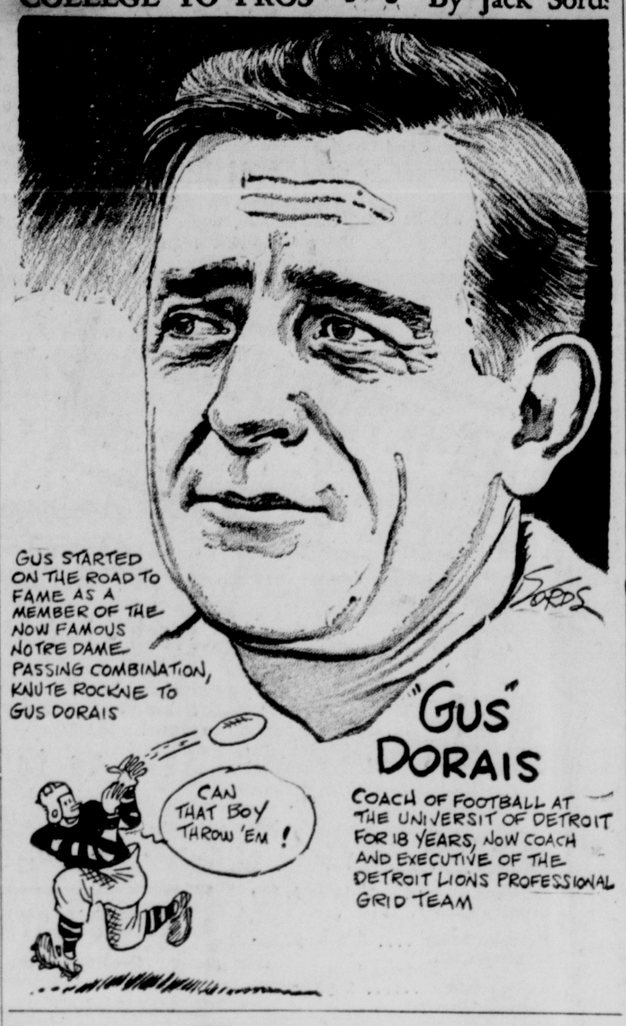

Ambers received a wallop in the eye by a wild-swinging boxer for his trouble.

SKI MEET CANCELLED

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—For the first time since 1905, the annual Norge ski club tournament, which drew the nation's top riders, was cancelled today because of the war. Because of the gasoline rationing and the fact that many of the top ranking skiers are in the armed forces, officials of the club decided to cancel the event which was scheduled to be held at nearby Cary, Ill., next Sunday.

Many Double Bills to Draw Baseball Fans

By Jack Mahon

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 — Baseball nuts who can find the time to get to the ball parks this year should be in for some real bargains for a look at the streamlined, wartime schedules currently under consideration by the national and American leagues indicates there will be a boom on double-headers during 1943.

Cancellation of one regularly scheduled road trip, the lukewarm success of twilight baseball and the elimination of the night game in areas subject to dimout regulations undoubtedly will cause the boys in the front office, particularly of second division clubs, to tack up that "two games for the price of one" sign very often this Summer.

We do not wish to rip the silver lining in the clouds of war that hang over the national pastime but it is our personal hunch a fear that the season might not be permitted to run its full course might cause still more additional twin bills to be written into the schedules.

Up until last year the teams had to wait three weeks before arranging any Sunday twin bills. That clause was wiped out last season and the club sailed in and started whipping up double-headers right and left. They cancelled games on the slightest provocation in the hope of luring a couple of hundred extra citizens through the stiles.

They can do the same thing this time and undoubtedly you'll find a couple of twin features carded for one of the first weekends of the new year.

President William Harridge of the American league and Ford Frick of the National reviewing their little brain-child yesterday estimated it would save exactly 69,000 team travel miles. Since they used a 30-man team as a base this would guarantee the railroads a total travel deduction of 2,179,840 man miles in '43!

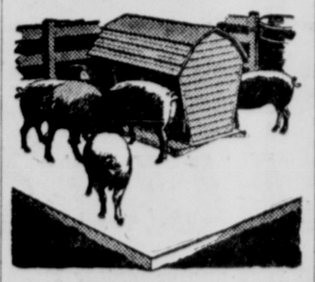

This total added to the mileage supposedly saved by the transfer of all training camps to the northern states pushes the approximate over-all mileage saved by baseball to some five million miles.

The prexies announced that the 1943 all-star game would be played at Shibe park, Philadelphia, July 13, with the Athletics as hosts and that the season would open April 21, except in Washington, where the A's and the Senators will open one day earlier as per custom.

The opening day schedule finds in the American league: Chicago at St. Louis; Detroit at Cleveland; Boston at Philadelphia and Washington at New York and in the National: New York at Brooklyn; Philadelphia at Boston; St. Louis at Cincinnati and Pittsburgh at Chicago.

For the first time in baseball history Memorial Day and July 4 will find teams engaged in intersectional battles. In the past it has always been East vs. East and West vs. West. This year both holidays fall on Sundays and will be observed by baseball the following afternoons.

TIGERS HOSTS TO HILLSBORO

Indians Come After Second Victory Of Season; First Score 51 To 25

Revenge for a 51-25 defeat suffered earlier in the season will be sought Friday night when Circleville high Tigers play host to Hillsboro's hefty Indians.

The Hillsboro crew started the season in a tough manner and has been doing well so far, although losing several contests. Two hefty boys of the football team, Gerald Bumgarner and Gerald Davis, are stalwarts of the cage team, although Creed, Stanforth and several others are playing good ball.

Coach Roy Black isn't definite concerning his starting five, lengthy drills of the last 10 days bringing several young fellows into the spotlight. Three members of the grid squad, all of whom played reserve basketball last year, have come out this week. They are Freck Heath, Bob Valentine and Ira Barr. They will likely get their first taste of action in the reserve game against Hillsboro.

GOTHAM GIVEN CAGE TOURNEY; TRAVEL SAVED

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21—Eastern collegiate basketball title contenders today were all set to battle for the coveted national crown in their own sector, instead of carrying the fight into the midwest, as they have in the past.

Under a change resulting from travel restrictions, the N. C. A. A. finals, slated tentatively for the last week in March, will be held at Madison Square Garden, New York, following East and West sectionals a week earlier at New York and Kansas City.

The tournament committee of national association will meet next month to allot dates, Harold Olsen, of Ohio State, chairman of the committee, revealed in announcing that the fifth annual championship would be contested in New York.

Olsen said the switch was made to the East in keeping with government travel restrictions, "to curtail the amount of transportation necessary for the competing teams."

BACK IN THE HEAVYWEIGHT WARS AFER AN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT KEPT HIM FROM THE RING FOR MANY MONTHS

PAT IS DEMONSTRATING IN HIS COMEBACK FIGHTS THAT HE STILL HOLDS HIS OLD POTENT WALLOP

COAST ACE TO SEEK ANOTHER VAULTING MARK

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21—Cornelius (Dutch) Warmerdam will take another shot at that elusive 16-foot pole vault mark at the Millrose games in New York February 6, he said today.

The high-flying Dutchman already holds the record of 15 feet 7¾ inches which might satisfy the ordinary mortal since it's 8¾ inches higher than any other man has been able to clear the high bar.

But Warmerdam has set his heart on making a 16-foot vault, an achievement which so far has eluded the 27-year-old school teacher despite his persistent attempts.

"I'm using a new pole," he said. "It's not a longer pole, just a stronger pole with more snap to it. I also plan to use a higher grip."

Warmerdam recently was named to the all-America track and field team for the fifth straight year.

C.A.C. ALLEYS BEING PLACED

Bowling To Be Resumed As Soon As Remodeling Of Basement Is Finished

Circleville is again to have bowling, four alleys being reconditioned and two others being purchased for installation in the basement of the Circleville Athletic Club.

Berlin (Pete) Noble, manager of the alleys until they were removed two years ago, said Thursday that the basement of the Athletic Club building is being modernized and that work will start Monday in alley installation. The two new alleys are expected within a few weeks' time.

C.A.C. property was bought two years ago by Columbus and Cleveland interests which intended to install new alleys on the main floor of the gymnasium, but the war and resulting shortage of materials forced them to abandon this plan.

Noble expects bowling to be resumed in about three weeks.

A WORD ABOUT BUYING ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

Everyone knows that careful planning makes for better buying. Things bought on the spur of the moment often turn out to be mistakes. And this is especially true of clothes.

Clothes money has to do a special job these days. It's necessary to wartime morale for us to be well-dressed—for a feeling of confidence and well-being. At the same time, the clothes we buy should cost as little as possible: War Bonds are much more important. Wardrobes should be planned so that everything harmonizes with everything else, so that a few clothes will provide variety.

REDLEGS SEEK TO TRADE PAUL TO CUB OUTFIT

Derringer On Block, Says Report From Windy City; Outfielder Wanted

GILES REPORTED BUSY

Several Candidates Loom For Brewer Hill Crew During 1943

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—Renewed efforts to trade Paul Derringer, right-handed pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds, to the Chicago Cubs were reported today.

The proposed deal has been hanging fire since the Major League baseball meeting in Chicago last month, and recently Warren Giles, the Reds' general manager, was reported to have resumed his efforts to trade off Derringer for some of the Cubs' outfield material.

Giles was expected to remain close on the heels of James T. Gallagher, general manager of the Cubs, during the Spring training season in an effort to work out some deal. The Reds chose Bloomington, Ind., for their Spring training camp which is just a stone's throw from the Cubs' training grounds at French Lick Springs, Ind.

Another prospective Spring trade was reported when Bill Veeck, president of the Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association, indicated he was seeking mound material from the Cubs. Possible candidates for the Brewers pitching staff were Forrest Pressnel, Joe Berry and Ray Prim, a left-hander.

PECK FAVORING LAFAYETTE FOR INDIANS' CAMP

CLEVELAND, Jan. 21—Roger Peckinpaugh, vice-president of the Cleveland Indians awaited word today of official confirmation from Purdue university's athletic director, Guy Mackey, that university athletic facilities would be available to the Cleveland Tribesmen to start training March 15

Choosing the state that five other major leaguers chose for pre-season training, Peckinpaugh disclosed that Purdue had been first choice, but that Marietta, O., and other locations had been inspected because plans for the navy to send a large group to the university.

Site of a 300 by 160 foot field house, according to Peckinpaugh, it is "the last word in field houses." The arrival of the navy group has been postponed until April, and physical education schedules and morning workouts of the ball club would not conflict.

Plans are already under way for a series of exhibition games with Cincinnati Reds, training at Bloomington, Ind. Other workouts were expected with the other teams in the state; Chicago White Sox and Cubs at French Lick; Detroit Tigers at Evansville, and the Pittsburgh Pirates at Muncie.

BOYS OF UNCLE SAM'S FORCES WIN IN FIGHTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—The boys of the United States army today proved they can give it to any one, including their allies after capturing eight of ten bouts held last night among members of the United Nations.

Three of the triumphs won by the American doughboys were knockouts while two were technical K. O.'s. Lt. Arthur Donovan, United States maritime commission, and Lou Ambers, former world's lightweight champion, and also of the coast guard shared the referee's duty.

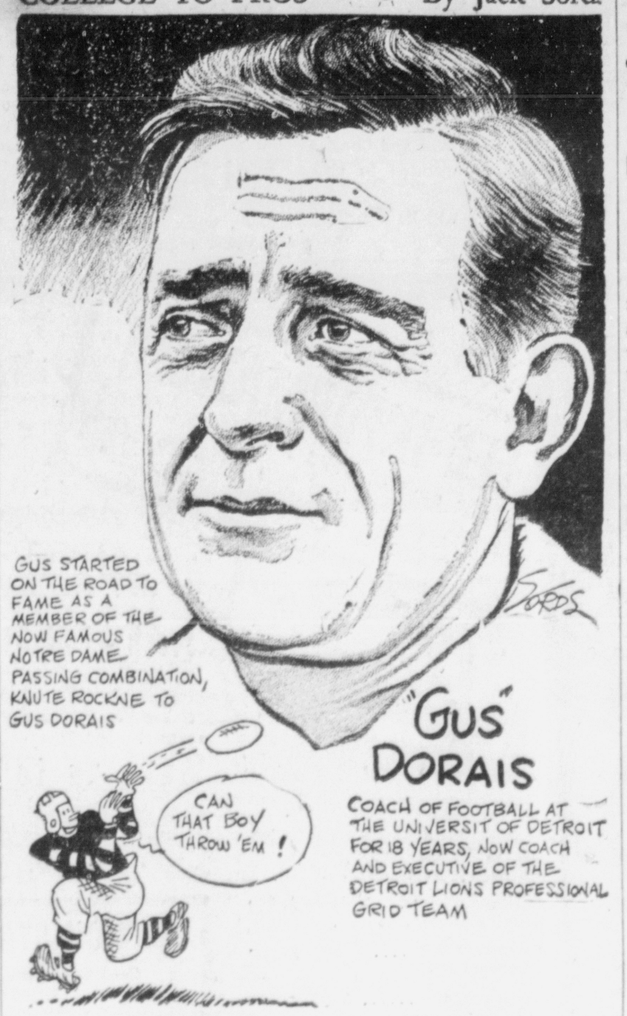

Ambers received a wallop in the eye by a wild-swinging boxer for his trouble.

SKI MEET CANCELLED

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—For the first time since 1905, the annual Norge ski club tournament, which drew the nation's top riders, was cancelled today because of the war. Because of the gasoline rationing and the fact that many of the top ranking skiers are in the armed forces, officials of the club decided to cancel the event which was scheduled to be held at nearby Cary, Ill., next Sunday.

Many Double Bills to Draw Baseball Fans

By Jack Mahon

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 — Baseball nuts who can find the time to get to the ball parks this year should be in for some real bargains for a look at the streamlined, wartime schedules currently under consideration by the national and American leagues indicates there will be a boom on double-headers during 1943.

Cancellation of one regularly scheduled road trip, the lukewarm success of twilight baseball and the elimination of the night game in areas subject to dimout regulations undoubtedly will cause the boys in the front office, particularly of second division clubs, to tack up that "two games for the price of one" sign very often this Summer.

We do not wish to rip the silver lining in the clouds of war that hang over the national pastime but it is our personal hunch a fear that the season might not be permitted to run its full course might cause still more additional twin bills to be written into the schedules.

Up until last year the teams had to wait three weeks before arranging any Sunday twin bills. That clause was wiped out last season and the club sailed in and started whipping up double-headers right and left. They cancelled games on the slightest provocation in the hope of luring a couple of hundred extra citizens through the stiles.

They can do the same thing this time and undoubtedly you'll find a couple of twin features carded for one of the first weekends of the new year.

President William Harridge of the American league and Ford Frick of the National reviewing their little brain-child yesterday estimated it would save exactly 69,000 team travel miles. Since they used a 30-man team as a base this would guarantee the railroads a total travel deduction of 2,179,840 man miles in '43!

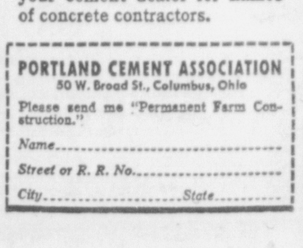

This total added to the mileage supposedly saved by the transfer of all training camps to the northern states pushes the approximate over-all mileage saved by baseball to some five million miles.

The prexies announced that the 1943 all-star game would be played at Shibe park, Philadelphia, July 13, with the Athletics as hosts and that the season would open April 21, except in Washington, where the A's and the Senators will open one day earlier as per custom.

The opening day schedule finds in the American league: Chicago at St. Louis; Detroit at Cleveland; Boston at Philadelphia and Washington at New York and in the National: New York at Brooklyn; Philadelphia at Boston; St. Louis at Cincinnati and Pittsburgh at Chicago.

For the first time in baseball history Memorial Day and July 4 will find teams engaged in intersectional battles. In the past it has always been East vs. East and West vs. West. This year both holidays fall on Sundays and will be observed by baseball the following afternoons.

TIGERS HOSTS TO HILLSBORO

Indians Come After Second Victory Of Season; First Score 51 To 25

Revenge for a 51-25 defeat suffered earlier in the season will be sought Friday night when Circleville high Tigers play host to Hillsboro's hefty Indians.

The Hillsboro crew started the season in a tough manner and has been doing well so far, although losing several contests. Two hefty boys of the football team, Gerald Bumgarner and Gerald Davis, are stalwarts of the cage team, although Creed, Stanforth and several others are playing good ball.

Coach Roy Black isn't definite concerning his starting five, lengthy drills of the last 10 days bringing several young fellows into the spotlight. Three members of the grid squad, all of whom played reserve basketball last year, have come out this week. They are Freck Heath, Bob Valentine and Ira Barr. They will likely get their first taste of action in the reserve game against Hillsboro.

GOTHAM GIVEN CAGE TOURNEY; TRAVEL SAVED

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21—Eastern collegiate basketball title contenders today were all set to battle for the coveted national crown in their own sector, instead of carrying the fight into the midwest, as they have in the past.

Under a change resulting from travel restrictions, the N. C. A. A. finals, slated tentatively for the last week in March, will be held at Madison Square Garden, New York, following East and West sectionals a week earlier at New York and Kansas City.

The tournament committee of national association will meet next month to allot dates, Harold Olsen, of Ohio State, chairman of the committee, revealed in announcing that the fifth annual championship would be contested in New York.

Olsen said the switch was made to the East in keeping with government travel restrictions, "to curtail the amount of transportation necessary for the competing teams."

LESLIE D. MAY RESIGNS FROM RATION BOARD

Original Chairman And Local Organizer Gave Time For Year

OBEYS OPA REGULATION

Bureau Holds Merchants Selling Ration Items May Not Serve

Leslie D. May, general manager of the Circleville Oil company, submitted his resignation Thursday to George D. McDowell, chairman of the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing board. Mr. May has been serving as chairman of the tire panel set up under the Office of Price Administration. His resignation becomes effective immediately.

Mr. May's move followed receipt of a letter Tuesday by Mr. McDowell from Inwood Smith, state OPA chief, who said that it is the policy of the OPA that no person selling any particular item of rationed goods be on the panel dispensing that product. Since Mr. May is on the tire panel, it was suggested that he be assigned to another branch of the War Price and Rationing Board.

Resigns Post

However, Mr. May declared in his letter of resignation to Mr. McDowell that he felt that he should resign in an effort to comply with the OPA office's policy.

Mr. May's letter to Mr. McDowell follows.

"The Office of Price Administra tra has recently adopted a policy that any person who sells any rationed commodities should not serve on a local rationing board. The Circleville Oil Company, of which I am the general manager, sells gasoline, kerosene, fuel oil and tires, all of which are rationed.

"In order to comply with this policy, I feel that I should no longer serve on the rationing board. I, therefore, tender my resignation from the Pickaway county Ration-Board effective at once and ask that it be accepted."

Served For Year

Mr. May was appointed over a year ago by the Circleville Civilian Defense Council as chairman of the rationing board. At that time the OPA was rationing only tires. Mr. May served as head of that board until sugar rationing started when the OPA asked that additional panels be set up to handle various tasks.

The oil company executive remained on the tire panel all the way, being required to devote more time to the rationing work than he did to his own business.

In the beginning when the OPA had no offices and no clerical help he provided office space and filing equipment in his plant for several months.

Mr. McDowell said that the county board had not been called yet to consider Mr. May's resignation.

LOCAL WATER PLANT NOT FOR SALE, CITY TOLD

G. Taylor Evans of Struthers, an executive of the Ohio Water Service company, informed Circleville council Wednesday night that the Circleville plant operated by his company is not for sale and will not be for sale.

Mr. Evans made his statement when he appeared briefly before council after a representative of a Chicago bonding house which is seeking to interest council in the purchase of the utility plant discussed possibility of the purchase.

The water company executive said that none of the seven plants owned by Ohio Water Service is for sale, and that none of them will be put on the market. He declared that a Securities Exchange Commission public utilities measure intended to reduce the number of companies held by any large holding company does not mean that Ohio Water Service will be sold.

Mr. Evans said that no plans are being made by the Ohio Water Service's holding company to put stock of either the Circleville, Washington C. H., Marysville, Struthers, Massillon, Girard or Youngstown plants on the market.

Council has a new ordinance proposed by the water company before it for consideration, but delayed action on it at Wednesday's meeting. The measure has been read twice and would have been subject to a vote if read the third time Wednesday. It was referred to the finance committee, headed by Councilman Frank A. Lynch, for further consideration.

SPEED ASKED IN RECLASSIFYING MARRIED MEN

Pickaway county Selective Service board has been instructed by state headquarters to speed reclassification of married men with dependents from 3-A to 3-B if they are employed in any of the 35 essential industries.

The task is already under way in the local office, but is requiring some time since the office force is busy with other duties.

Instructions sent to the local boards by the War Manpower Commission's Selective Service bureau referred only to "married men with children" but officials said reclassification would apply to all men in 3-A whether their dependents results solely from marriage, from wife and child or children, or by reason of collateral dependents.

In its instructions to local boards, the Manpower bureau said:

"Stressing that it is in the national interest to have married men with children employed in war-supporting activities, so as to release single men to the armed forces and also to relieve labor shortages in war production, all local boards are urged by national headquarters to speed to completion the classification of all registrants who should be in Class 3-B.

"The 'necessary man' test," it added, "has been specifically and purposely left out of consideration for classification in Class 3-B because it is obvious that an unskilled man would not be able to obtain employment in a war-supporting activitity and become a 'necessary man' until he had considerable training and experience."

ASHVILLE

This Thursday evening is the time of the annual brotherhood banquet at the service and Sunday school room of the local Lutheran church. The ladies of the church aid will prepare and serve the banquet. Along with the program part of the meeting, a talk will be given by Prof. Craig of the Capital university. Both Lockbourne and Ashville Lutheran congregations have brotherhoods and the banquet this evening, is the annual joint meeting. These special, annual meetings have been held for the last dozen years or more, we are told.

—Ashville—

Both the village council and the Ashville-Harrison joint school board held short sessions Monday evening, transacting no business except the paying of current bills.

The Weather Man who predicted this "whizer" a few days ago, and whom you made fun of for not doing his stuff when he said he would, is sure evening up things now. The temperature measuring stick down on the corner yesterday, Wednesday morning at 7, registered one above the zero mark. A few in the same locality indicated a lower spot. This Thursday morning 20 degrees above zero.

—Ashville—

The headquarters court yesterday was telling how this tough Winter is well on the way out, February being near, with ground hog day just around the corner, February 2; good Abe Lincoln's birthday, the 12th; Valentine time, the 14th, when the "dear ones" will be receiving some fine and pretty, and others telling what you are and making it fit the case; George Washington will be getting his all about that nice little cherry tree getting whacked into and telling the truth about it when his Dad caught him in the act and that's how this telling the truth stuff got started. "Never tell a lie if the truth will fit in better". Thsi is an order of the court. February sugar camps would be in operation were there any to operate. So signs of Spring are getting nearer each day. Hang on!

—Ashville—

Met Kenneth Holtrey, teacher of Agriculture over at Walnut township school, yesterday evening, and it being farm machinery repair time now, made inquiry of him how, if any of it was being done. Said they had several pieces in for repair, enough to keep them busy for a time. Thirteen boys compose his class and don't believe it "soaked in much" when we tried to convince him that this unlucky 13 should have something done about it.

—Ashville—

The Go-Getter 4-H Club of Duvall held a meeting recently at the Grange Hall north of Ashville and made plans for much of their Spring and Summer work. Charles Eversole is their leader. It will be recalled that this club was the leading one of the county last year and the youngsters hope to do equally well again this year.

—Ashville—

Really seems for a sure fact now, that we are to have a new dentist, a Dr. M. S. Ross of Cadiz, Ohio. Has a wife and a near 10 year old son, Allen. Have rented an apartment of Miss Lulu Garner and in the not so far distant future, will be residents of Ashville. Comes here by the invitation of Dr. Rockey.

RED CROSS COMMITTEE MEETING POSTPONED

Red Cross executive committee meeting, scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, was postponed until next Tuesday when several members of the board could not be persent.

Carl C. Leist, chairman, said that several applications have been received by Mrs. Larry Athey, home service chairman, for the position left by resignation of Miss Agnes Butch. Miss Butch has served as home service official for about 20 years.

Several residences are being considered by the chapter for its quarters, a final decision expected to be made at the meeting next week.

LESLIE D. MAY RESIGNS FROM RATION BOARD

Original Chairman And Local Organizer Gave Time For Year

OBEYS OPA REGULATION

Bureau Holds Merchants Selling Ration Items May Not Serve

Leslie D. May, general manager of the Circleville Oil company, submitted his resignation Thursday to George D. McDowell, chairman of the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing board. Mr. May has been serving as chairman of the tire panel set up under the Office of Price Administration. His resignation becomes effective immediately.

Mr. May's move followed receipt of a letter Tuesday by Mr. McDowell from Inwood Smith, state OPA chief, who said that it is the policy of the OPA that no person selling any particular item of rationed goods be on the panel dispensing that product. Since Mr. May is on the tire panel, it was suggested that he be assigned to another branch of the War Price and Rationing Board.

Resigns Post

However, Mr. May declared in his letter of resignation to Mr. McDowell that he felt that he should resign in an effort to comply with the OPA office's policy.

Mr. May's letter to Mr. McDowell follows.

"The Office of Price Administra has recently adopted a policy that any person who sells any rationed commodities should not serve on a local rationing board. The Circleville Oil Company, of which I am the general manager, sells gasoline, kerosene, fuel oil and tires, all of which are rationed.

"In order to comply with this policy, I feel that I should no longer serve on the rationing board. I, therefore, tender my resignation from the Pickaway county Ration-Board effective at once and ask that it be accepted."

Served For Year

Mr. May was appointed over a year ago by the Circleville Civilian Defense Council as chairman of the rationing board. At that time the OPA was rationing only tires. Mr. May served as head of that board until sugar rationing started when the OPA asked that additional panels be set up to handle various tasks.

The oil company executive remained on the tire panel all the way, being required to devote more time to the rationing work than he did to his own business.

In the beginning when the OPA had no offices and no clerical help he provided office space and filing equipment in his plant for several months.

Mr. McDowell said that the county board had not been called yet to consider Mr. May's resignation.

LOCAL WATER PLANT NOT FOR SALE, CITY TOLD

G. Taylor Evans of Struthers, an executive of the Ohio Water Service company, informed Circleville council Wednesday night that the Circleville plant operated by his company is not for sale and will not be for sale.

Mr. Evans made his statement when he appeared briefly before council after a representative of a Chicago bonding house which is seeking to interest council in the purchase of the utility plant discussed possibility of the purchase.

The water company executive said that none of the seven plants owned by Ohio Water Service is for sale, and that none of them will be put on the market. He declared that a Securities Exchange Commission public utilities measure intended to reduce the number of companies held by any large holding company does not mean that Ohio Water Service will be sold.

Mr. Evans said that no plans are being made by the Ohio Water Service's holding company to put stock of either the Circleville, Washington C. H., Marysville, Struthers, Massillon, Girard or Youngstown plants on the market.

Council has a new ordinance proposed by the water company before it for consideration, but delayed action on it at Wednesday's meeting. The measure has been read twice and would have been subject to a vote if read the third time Wednesday. It was referred to the finance committee, headed by Councilman Frank A. Lynch, for further consideration.

SPEED ASKED IN RECLASSIFYING MARRIED MEN

Pickaway county Selective Service board has been instructed by state headquarters to speed reclassification of married men with dependents from 3-A to 3-B if they are employed in any of the 35 essential industries.

The task is already under way in the local office, but is requiring some time since the office force is busy with other duties.

Instructions sent to the local boards by the War Manpower Commission's Selective Service bureau referred only to "married men with children" but officials said reclassification would apply to all men in 3-A whether their dependents results solely from marriage, from wife and child or children, or by reason of collateral dependents.

In its instructions to local boards, the Manpower bureau said:

"Stressing that it is in the national interest to have married men with children employed in war-supporting activities, so as to release single men to the armed forces and also to relieve labor shortages in war production, all local boards are urged by national headquarters to speed to completion the classification of all registrants who should be in Class 3-B.

"The 'necessary man' test," it added, "has been specifically and purposely left out of consideration for classification in Class 3-B because it is obvious that an unskilled man would not be able to obtain employment in a war-supporting activitity and become a 'necessary man' until he had considerable training and experience."

ASHVILLE

This Thursday evening is the time of the annual brotherhood banquet at the service and Sunday school room of the local Lutheran church. The ladies of the church aid will prepare and serve the banquet. Along with the program part of the meeting, a talk will be given by Prof. Craig of the Capital university. Both Lockbourne and Ashville Lutheran congregations have brotherhoods and the banquet this evening, is the annual joint meeting. These special, annual meetings have been held for the last dozen years or more, we are told.

—Ashville—

Both the village council and the Ashville-Harrison joint school board held short sessions Monday evening, transacting no business except the paying of current bills.

The Weather Man who predicted this "whizer" a few days ago, and whom you made fun of for not doing his stuff when he said he would, is sure evening up things now. The temperature measuring stick down on the corner yesterday, Wednesday morning at 7, registered one above the zero mark. A few in the same locality indicated a lower spot. This Thursday morning 20 degrees above zero.

—Ashville—

The headquarters court yesterday was telling how this tough Winter is well on the way out, February being near, with ground hog day just around the corner, February 2; good Abe Lincoln's birthday, the 12th; Valentine time, the 14th, when the "dear ones" will be receiving some fine and pretty, and others telling what you are and making it fit the case; George Washington will be getting his all about that nice little cherry tree getting whacked into and telling the truth about it when his Dad caught him in the act and that's how this telling the truth stuff got started. "Never tell a lie if the truth will fit in better". Thsi is an order of the court. February sugar camps would be in operation were there any to operate. So signs of Spring are getting nearer each day. Hang on!

—Ashville—

Met Kenneth Holtrey, teacher of Agriculture over at Walnut township school, yesterday evening, and it being farm machinery repair time now, made inquiry of him how, if any of it was being done. Said they had several pieces in for repair, enough to keep them busy for a time. Thirteen boys compose his class and don't believe it "soaked in much" when we tried to convince him that this unlucky 13 should have something done about it.

—Ashville—

The Go-Getter 4-H Club of Duvall held a meeting recently at the Grange Hall north of Ashville and made plans for much of their Spring and Summer work. Charles Eversole is their leader. It will be recalled that this club was the leading one of the county last year and the youngsters hope to do equally well again this year.

—Ashville—

Really seems for a sure fact now, that we are to have a new dentist, a Dr. M. S. Ross of Cadiz, Ohio. Has a wife and a near 10 year old son, Allen. Have rented an apartment of Miss Lulu Garner and in the not so far distant future, will be residents of Ashville. Comes here by the invitation of Dr. Rockey.

RED CROSS COMMITTEE MEETING POSTPONED

Red Cross executive committee meeting, scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, was postponed until next Tuesday when several members of the board could not be persent.

Carl C. Leist, chairman, said that several applications have been received by Mrs. Larry Athey, home service chairman, for the position left by resignation of Miss Agnes Butch. Miss Butch has served as home service official for about 20 years.

Several residences are being considered by the chapter for its quarters, a final decision expected to be made at the meeting next week.

FRED C. CLARK SPEAKS BEFORE METHODIST MEN

Fred C. Clark spoke on "Patriotism" Wednesday night at an excellent meeting of the Methodist Men's Fellowship group. The meeting, attended by 60 men, was presided over by Harold Defenbaugh, new president of the group.

Members of the brotherhood voted their appreciation to the women of Circle I for the splendid supper served.

A committee, comprised of John Magill, C. C. McClure and Charles Radcliff, was appointed to visit sick members.

Next meeting will be February 17.

TWO ENLIST

Notice of two enlistments in the U. S. navy was received Thursday by Pickaway county Selective Service board. Orville West of Williamsport and Meredith Richards of Circleville Route 3 have been accepted and have been assigned to Great Lakes, Ill., to start their training. West is a former Williamsport high school athlete, while Richards attended Circleville high school.

1943 WAR CROPS DESIGNATED BY ELMER F. KRUSE

War crops for the 1943 AAA program were designated Thursday by Elmer F. Kruse, Ohio AAA chief, the report being sent to the Pickaway county AAA board.

Included in the list of crops were soybeans for fiber, Irish potatoes on farms where acreage is three acres or more, dry edible beans, dry peas, tomatoes, peas, carrots, beets, sweet corn, snap bean, lima beans and cabbage for processing, blue grass, alfalfa, clovers and lespedeza.

Sweet clover acreage used for pasture or hay can now be included in the goal. Kruse said that his office does not expect sweet clover seeded primarily as a green manure crop to be included.

Kruse asks the AAA committee to see that various township committeemen are informed of the war crops so they may plan their 1943 production programs accordingly.

61 OUT OF 72 DRAFTEES PASS SERVICE TEST

Percentage Of Acceptance Highest Recorded In Pickaway County

51 HOME ON FURLOUGH

Group Reports Wednesday For Transportation To Fort Thomas

Highest percentage of acceptances of any Pickaway county draft contingent since Selective Service started was reported Thursday after men who were inducted in the army Wednesday in Columbus returned home. Youths who were sworn into Uncle Sam's army and who returned home on furlough said that they understood that only 11 of 72 who went before the army medical team were rejected.

Fifty-one youths and men returned home for seven day furloughs, all being scheduled to report next Wednesday to start their trip to Fort Thomas, Ky., and assignment to training centers.

Although the Selective Service office will not have its official report on the contingent until Friday or Saturday, it was indicated by furloughed youths that several who were accepted left immediately for the assignment center while several others, possibly four or five men, were held over for further physical tests.

Until the board receives its complete report the number of men accepted will be announced only at 51, the number returning home, since disposition of the others is not yet definite.

Included in the contingent were 15 men of the first registration, one of the third registration and 56 from the fifth registration which includes 18 and 19 year old youths.

1943 WAR CROPS DESIGNATED BY ELMER F. KRUSE

War crops for the 1943 AAA program were designated Thursday by Elmer F. Kruse, Ohio AAA chief, the report being sent to the Pickaway county AAA board.

Included in the list of crops were soybeans for fiber, Irish potatoes on farms where acreage is three acres or more, dry edible beans, dry peas, tomatoes, peas, carrots, beets, sweet corn, snap bean, lima beans and cabbage for processing, blue grass, alfalfa, clovers and lespedeza.

Sweet clover acreage used for pasture or hay can now be included in the goal. Kruse said that his office does not expect sweet clover seeded primarily as a green manure crop to be included.

Kruse asks the AAA committee to see that various township committeemen are informed of the war crops so they may plan their 1943 production programs accordingly.

FRUITS OF CONQUEST

HOW are the Germans liking their wonderful war now? And their wonderful Fuehrer? To get a slant on the question, perhaps it is enough for an observer hereabouts to imagine himself in that bloody welter in Stalingrad, or in a German household where the women know their men are fighting in Russia, starved and frozen and sick, in a hopeless struggle, with their dead lying all around them. That City of Stalin with its suburbs is now a vast graveyard, where the pitiful remnants of perhaps a quarter of a million Germans are being cut down and buried in the ruins they have made. Every street there is a cemetery, every house a grave.

And all those other Germans, a million or two of them, fighting backward hopelessly day after day, week after week, month after month, over the land they lately invaded as conquerors — shot and blasted by hundreds of thousands— starving and freezing in the Russian snow as Napoleon's armies did long ago—what are they thinking as they bind up their wounds and eat their emergency rations in the bitter wind or as they sink down and the snow drifts cover them?

The handwriting is on the wall for Hitler and his Super Men who set out to conquer Europe and the world. It is ever written in the sky now, with the nightly bombing of Berlin. It is "Mene, Mene, Tekel Upharsin" again, as it must ever be when arrogant men flout God, and pliant and greedy followers uphold them. Will they learn their lesson this time, or must they be completely destroyed?

TRUTH ABOUT CHINA

ONE of the curious notions that seem to be spreading lately is that, while China should be saved from being crushed by the Japs, there would be danger in letting the former become too strong. The idea is so strange, in view of the whole attitude of modern China under Chiang Kai-Shek, that it almost seems as if this is a result of Japanese propaganda to fool Americans.

A good reply has been given by Maj. Chu Shih Ming, Chinese military attache at Washington. Here are some of his remarks.

"It would be unworthy to argue from such a point of view (that China has imperialistic plans) since nothing could be farther from reality than these allegations. No people in the world should be better able than Americans to understand this. China is looking forward to the realization of real quality among all nations of the world, not of a select few. In this war we are fighting for our own independence, but we are also fighting for the liberation of the oppressed peoples of Asia."

In this effort, he points out, China is fighting side by side with the United States to crush Japan and thereby make the freedom of non-predatory nations more secure.

There is no question as to how the American people feel about China. And if China has been snubbed at Washington lately, as it seemed to be, it is not a reflection of public sentiment there.

STORMY QUESTIONING

WASHINGTON — Lend-Lease Administrator Ed Stettinius is headed for a stormy reception when he testifies before the House Appropriations Committee on the new $11,000,000,000 budget for lend-lease aid to our allies.

The hearing will be behind closed doors, and Republican committeemen are preparing to fire some hot questions about alleged irregularities in lend-lease operations, including a charge that we purchased several merchant ships from Canada which were later given to the British.

Chairman Emory S. Land of the Maritime Commission has admitted this at a closed-door meeting of the House Merchant Marine Committee. Another charge to be fired at Stettinius is that we sent scarce farm implements to Britain while our own farmers were minus.

The meeting, however, will not be a one-way session. For the Lend-Lease boss has a surprise of his own in store for the committee. He plans to present details on "reciprocal" lend-lease—namely services we are getting from the British.

THE OTHER SIDE

The American public has heard little about this phase, but we have received considerable free aid from the British, including ships, ship repairs, barrage balloons for our coastal cities, anti-aircraft guns and several large naval bases in the war zone, completely built, equipped and paid for by the British.

The Britsh also have turned over to our forces in England, without cost, a huge air depot and an adjacent airdrome with an operating personnel of 5,000 workers paid by the British government.

In addition, Great Britain has built several large cantonments, storage buildings, and other facilities for our troops—all without cost to Uncle Sam.

Note: The President once compared lend-lease to supplying a hose to put out a fire in your neighbor's house. If the fire is extinguished, but the hose is destroyed, it is still a good investment because you prevent your own home from burning down.

OFFICIALS SAVE GAS

Some few Washington bigwigs are careless about gasoline rationing, but they are exceptions. Most Washington officialdom is scrupulously careful.

The Chief Justice of the United States, for instance, is riding a truck. Chief Justice Stone discarded his private car as a means of getting to and from the Supreme Court, and instead hitch-hikes in the delivery truck which runs errands for the

DIET AND HEALTH

Does Eating Raw Eggs Interfere With Biotin?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ONE OF MY correspondents takes exception to an answer I gave the other day when I was asked whether an eggnog a day is effective in relieving a tired and worn-out feeling, because it has been said that raw eggs destroy vitamins. My answer was that eggs themselves are full of vitamins.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

My correspondent points out that biochemists have shown that there is an "egg white injury factor" and that biotin has a strong affinity for raw egg white. She says that dietitians were informed by a biochemist that they should tell their classes and patients that raw egg white can keep the body from absorbing biotin and that, therefore, raw egg white is not good as such, but should be cooked.

I am glad to make this letter public, although I have considerable reservations about the whole subject of the egg white injury factor and also about the great powers of biotin. Biotin is a growth-stimulating vitamin; its physiologic activity has been investigated mostly in the lower forms of plant and animal life.

Experiments With Rats

As to the egg white injury factor, experiments have suggested that when rats are kept on a diet containing uncooked egg white, they develop a characteristic syndrome known as "egg white injury." Continued feeding of this diet results in the death of the animal. It has been indicated that the injury produced is not due to the action of the egg white, but results from an inter-action of a protein present in egg white with the biotin of the diet. As a result the biotin is rendered unavailable to the animal and a biotin deficiency results, producing the typical "egg white injury syndrome."

This is all very well, but as I recently pointed out to a doctor, the human body is capable of a good many things which you wouldn't guess if you were just reading a single article in the Journal of Biological Chemistry. This particular doctor was worried about some patients who had had continued fever and who had not been able to eat very much for several weeks. He thought they must be just full of vitamin deficiencies and that their blood wouldn't coagulate. But it just so happened that they weren't full of vitamin deficiencies and their blood did coagulate.

Potency of Biotin

One biochemist stated that biotin is so powerful in its effects on life that it is felt in such minute amounts as one part in 500,000,000,000. Yet it can't overcome a little egg white?

Regarding egg white injury, there is one question I would like the biochemists to explain: before a chicken is hatched, it is in a state in which it is saturated with raw egg white. In fact, that is about the only kind of protein it gets, and I would like to see a newborn chicken suffering from the egg white injury syndrome. Also, weasels and others of that family, such as skunks, suck raw eggs a good deal, but I never heard of one with egg white injury. My acquaintance with skunks has impressed me with their insouciance and complete lack of vitamin deficiency.

Understand, I am not crabbing: just trying to adjust biochemics to nature. General Pershing said to some young officers, "If the landscape does not agree with the map you have drawn of it, consider the possibility that the landscape is correct."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. J. H.: Is insulin a cure for diabetes? Some people say it is a cure and others say emphatically there is no cure for diabetes.

Answer: The word "cure" means complete recovery due to the use of a certain remedy. In this sense insulin does not cure diabetes, nor does anything else. But insulin holds diabetes in control so that the dangerous condition of coma does not come on and nutrition is kept at a good level. For all practical purposes the diabetic taking insulin and a proper diet is just the same as a normal person.

Embattled Love

BY LORENA CARLETON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

WHEN THE opportunity did present itself for Abby and Paige to return to Honolulu, it was by Clipper. As they hurriedly packed light baggage, in answer to a quick call, Paige remarked, "I hope my luck holds, at least until we take off. I have seen Eugenia but that one time, and that's been at least three weeks."

"And you won't." Abby stole a second from her work. "I had what is known as 'words' with Eugenia. I'm the only person who can call me homely and get by with it. San Francisco wasn't big enough for the two of us—as I pointed out to her." The white-haired woman smoothed the hips of her zebra-striped silk dress with motions as savage as her attack on the blond girl, then returned to the battle of stuffing too many clothes into one bag.

Soon she put on a brown Alaska seal coat over the ferocity of her zebra dress. Paige was elbowing her way into the gray-striped topcoat that matched her suit, the same traveling outfit she had worn when leaving with Rusty on the Mazatlan.

"Paige," blurted Abby, "I've said it before and I'm saying it again, for the last time, 'You don't HAVE to go with me."

"You need someone with you." To lessen the anxiety in the little woman's faded eyes the girl added, "Besides, I want to go—it'll be such fun to see Rusty. I want to watch him squirm." Abby Tyson made no answer.

It was difficult to believe, even when the Clipper was traveling very, very gently upward, that they were on their way to Honolulu. The place seemed isolated, inaccessible by what it had endured.

Gradually Abby began to lean back from her decidedly uncomfortable perch on the edge of her seat. "I wish I could decide if I like it up here. I'll admit the water doesn't seem so cold and wet from this height."

"That's right," agreed Paige. She chuckled. "And there is another advantage. If you're so scared you sleep in your clothes tonight, it will be for only one night instead of four as it was on the Lorelei. Pierre wouldn't have to go through so many fits."

For several minutes Abby was quiet except for her jaws, busy with chewing gum. Finally she said, "I wonder how soon we get fed?"

Paige laughed aloud. "You're beginning to like it here, Abby."

Restwick Carnes was flying also, in a private plane. The one he kept at his Kaneohe place. The one he had kept in the city had gone up in flames as the military planes had.

"Not that you would be allowed to fly even if it had not been destroyed," he had been told. "The armed forces must not be confused unnecessarily by unknown planes."

All the same, Rusty was in the air, for the first time since that fateful December 7. And it was glorious to be flying. That is, flying as he was, strictly for pleasure. It was glorious also, to be defying orders. They even wanted to take the sky away from him.

He intended to enjoy this freedom to the utmost. That was what flying should be. Freedom. Not a stilted martial pattern of many planes bent upon destruction. It was an escape, a place to go when you wanted to be even more important than Restwick Carnes III. It was where you went when you wanted to feel you owned the world. You could look down and see so much of it. That was the way Rusty felt about flying.

He headed higher into the sky, did several sharp turns, and then some dips, just to prove he really could fly. The trouble was, a guy like General Clemmons could make a young fellow wonder about himself. Rusty didn't like that. He increased his speed and climbed still higher. He began to circle, around and around, over his and Abby Tyson's plantations.

Yes, Restwick Carnes intended to enjoy this ride. He had had a hard time getting up. The plantation runway had been clotted with weeds and flowers and vines. All that interference had to be cleared and by only one boy. Other boys had been assigned temporarily to war duties. Just another example, Rusty thought furiously, of the accursed war ruining his life.

He turned his ship and flew toward the Pali. The wind, treacherous enough when one was on the ground, was even more dangerous in a plane. Rusty felt the little ship's body toss as if it were made of paper. He leaned to one side to peer down at that steep mountain and into the rocky wet valley below it. If a plane fell there it would be the same as dropping an egg into a rock garden. Suddenly he wondered into what sort of place Denison's plane had fallen.

The thought made him shiver. He remembered also standing at Eugenia's hotel windows after she had told him of Paige's past, remembered also, watching the planes out over the harbor. He remembered his certainty that Paige's Denison had fallen purposely; he remembered how intensely he had understood a man taking that way out if confronted with such a sorrow now. The situation was reversed. His Eugenia was the wicked one, wicked with a wickedness that chilled the blood.

Restwick Carnes' lungs gasped for air. He realized he had been holding his breath for several seconds. The palms, even the back of his hands, were wet. He felt as if something verminous were crawling along his spine. Fighting the battering wind, he nosed his little ship toward its home hangar.

Choppo's joyous yell greeted him when he landed before the plantation hangar. The youngster came running across the grass-covered field.

"Take me up this time, Rusty. Take me. Will you, huh?"

The man's hand clutched the the thatch of hair on Choppo's head so tightly that, for a second, tears were hard to control, but Choppo managed. The gaze he lifted to Restwick Carnes was dry. He did not repeat his pleading to be taken up. He just trailed at the man's feet, into the wide lanai, across the living room, on into a library where Rusty sat down behind an enormous desk.

He spoke to the child. "Choppo, I have something very important to do. I want you to pack some clothes and go with the houseboy to Denison Ware's." His voice was less strong. "I know how much you like Denison."

The boy's expression was a mixture of anticipation and dutiful loyalty. "Oh, I do, Rusty. I always have fun with him, but I wouldn't—gee, Rusty, I don't wanna leave you. You might need me."

"Not right now. Run along, Choppo. Pack your riding clothes. And hurry, because as soon as you've gone I have to go up again." He listened to the boy's footsteps across the floor. They made tapping sounds up the stairs.

Restwick Carnes reached for a shot-glass and poured himself a straight drink of Bourbon. He changed his mind and poured it into a highball glass, then picked up the bottle and added to it until the glass was three-fourths full. He filled it with plain water. He was glad he hadn't had a drink earlier in the day. There was something too warm and wonderful about a first drink. This was the moment for it.

He drank as if he were drinking water. A second time he filled his glass in the same manner. This time he walked to a mirror and looked at himself. Those sapphire-blue eyes were half frightened, half determined. The whiskey rolled around his heart in a devil-may-care warmth that comforted.

"Small detail!" muttered Restwick Carnes III, and drained his glass.

The Clipper landing was a matter of closed windows and many soldiers standing nearby. The days of leis and music were gone. Abby's chauffeur, in answer to her cable, was there. Not with her large limousine, but with a tiny coupe.

"Even so, madame, we're apt to have to get out and push—gas rationing, you know."

Abby Tyson paid little attention. She was too busy searching the crowd. "Where is Choppo?" And then she saw Denison Ware, standing beside his station wagon. "Where is Choppo?" she demanded of him. Her voice was alarmed.

He dashed toward her and gripped her arm. "Choppo is with me. He—" His dark eyes darted to Paige's face, tried to find the answer to a question not even worded. "Abby, Rusty went up in his plane yesterday. He had an accident—"

"But Rusty is a wonderful pilot! He wouldn't have an—" And then she knew. "Oh, Denison—oh, poor little Choppo!"

They both swerved to watch Paige. The girl walked to the small coupe and got in. Abby caught her chauffeur's eye and gestured to Denison Ware's station wagon. She climbed in beside Denison and they headed toward Kaneohe. Neither spoke for many minutes.

Finally Denison said, "Abby, Choppo thinks Rusty was doing something for the Army."

"I'll remember," the little woman said.

"And, Abby—" the dark-haired man reached over to grasp the hand that trembled like a leaf. "Children forget."

Abby was motionless for an instant and then she returned the touch of Denison Ware's hand. She even managed to turn and look at him with her brimming eyes.

"I know, dear. And," she consoled, "so do adults. So will Paige. She's not grieving because of love. It's a grief born of decency and a generous heart—just be patient, Denison. Just be patient."

WORLD AT A GLANCE . . . .

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON—American and British abandonment of extra-territorial rights in China generally is described to the Occident as a great concession by the western countries to the Flowery Land in token of the formers' appreciation of the latter's gallant fight against the Japanese.

Charles P Stewart

Well, it's a fact that Chiang Kai-shek's Chungking government of today did want extra-territoriality ended.

That it originally was forced upon the Chinese from outside is entirely a wrong conclusion, however. It was an arrangement insisted on not only by the Chinese, but by other governments in the Near, Middle and Far Easts, as a condition for permitting foreigners to settle, live and transact business in their various midsts.

It prevailed in Turkey, for example, when I visited there just after the Abdul Hamid revolution.

Far from having imposed it upon a reluctant sultan, our diplomatic corps didn't like it. It involved a lot of work and was a nuisance to 'em. Nevertheless, they had it to bother with. The Turks wouldn't take it off our hands.

The Ottoman Empire wasn't so bad, to be sure, because we weren't sufficiently numerous there to be a serious pest. Along the Chinese coast, though, our traders were thick, and we had to keep order among 'em. And at our own expense, mind you. That was the beauty of it, from the extra-territorialized folk's standpoint.

Envoy's Headache

Constantinople was the Turks' capital in those days. Now it's changed its name to Istanbul and the governmental headquarters has moved to Ankara. But that's immaterial.

To me extra-territoriality was a new thing at the time, but I soon learned that I wasn't responsible, within our Yankee diplomatic limits, for much of anything, to anybody but my own ambassador. If I created a street disturbance, no doubt the local police would have pinched me, but only to have been turned over immediately to the U. S. embassy's custody.

"Suppose," I asked Louis Einstein, then our embassy's first secretary alongside the Bosporus, "that I killed a man. What would happen?"

"If you killed a Turk," said Louis, "I presume it would result in diplomatic complications, but if you killed nobody but an American, it would be up to the embassy to 'tend to you. We'd try you, and if we decided you needed to be executed, that also would be our own funeral; yours likewise."

But, as previously remarked, our American population in Turkey was trifing; too small to worry our representatives there. Our embassy and consulate kept matters in hand quite efficiently.

The idea is that these Orientals initially didn't care a cent's worth for our western presence among 'em. They were willing to let us come ashore and set up housekeeping, but not to accept any responsibility for our kind of inhabitants.

Accordingly, upon being externally approached for accommodations, their answer's been:

"Don't Bother Us"

"Anchor here if you like, but don't fret us any."

No, as I've said, Turkey was no serious problem; our embassy there dealt with it.

However, consider such a port as Shanghai—now occupied by the Japs.

In that city we've had, for more than a century, a "settlement" as American as New York or Chicago. We've policed it, with Yankee coppers. We've had our own courts there. They've been U. S. federal, indeed. You were tried federally, if it chanced to be for nothing more serious than intoxication. You were tried by a U. S. federal judge, no matter how trifling your alleged offense was.

If an American went on a toot, a United States judge passed on his case and, assuming his conviction, a local U. S. jail jailed him.

If socked on a trifing charge, we had a local coop to shut him up in.

If it happened to be something ferocious, he was committed to San Quentin, California.

That's what extra-territorial Occidental surrender implies in China.

Japan's different.

FRUITS OF CONQUEST

HOW are the Germans liking their wonderful war now? And their wonderful Fuehrer? To get a slant on the question, perhaps it is enough for an observer hereabouts to imagine himself in that bloody welter in Stalingrad, or in a German household where the women know their men are fighting in Russia, starved and frozen and sick, in a hopeless struggle, with their dead lying all around them. That City of Stalin with its suburbs is now a vast graveyard, where the pitiful remnants of perhaps a quarter of a million Germans are being cut down and buried in the ruins they have made. Every street there is a cemetery, every house a grave.

And all those other Germans, a million or two of them, fighting backward hopelessly day after day, week after week, month after month, over the land they lately invaded as conquerors — shot and blasted by hundreds of thousands— starving and freezing in the Russian snow as Napoleon's armies did long ago—what are they thinking as they bind up their wounds and eat their emergency rations in the bitter wind or as they sink down and the snow drifts cover them?

The handwriting is on the wall for Hitler and his Super Men who set out to conquer Europe and the world. It is ever written in the sky now, with the nightly bombing of Berlin. It is "Mene, Mene, Tekel Upharsin" again, as it must ever be when arrogant men flout God, and pliant and greedy followers uphold them. Will they learn their lesson this time, or must they be completely destroyed?

TRUTH ABOUT CHINA

ONE of the curious notions that seem to be spreading lately is that, while China should be saved from being crushed by the Japs, there would be danger in letting the former become too strong. The idea is so strange, in view of the whole attitude of modern China under Chiang Kai-Shek, that it almost seems as if this is a result of Japanese propaganda to fool Americans.

A good reply has been given by Maj. Chu Shih Ming, Chinese military attache at Washington. Here are some of his remarks.

"It would be unworthy to argue from such a point of view (that China has imperialistic plans) since nothing could be farther from reality than these allegations. No people in the world should be better able than Americans to understand this. China is looking forward to the realization of real quality among all nations of the world, not of a select few. In this war we are fighting for our own independence, but we are also fighting for the liberation of the oppressed peoples of Asia."

In this effort, he points out, China is fighting side by side with the United States to crush Japan and thereby make the freedom of non-predatory nations more secure.

There is no question as to how the American people feel about China. And if China has been snubbed at Washington lately, as it seemed to be, it is not a reflection of public sentiment there.

STORMY QUESTIONING

WASHINGTON — Lend-Lease Administrator Ed Stettinius is headed for a stormy reception when he testifies before the House Appropriations Committee on the new $11,000,000,000 budget for lend-lease aid to our allies.

The hearing will be behind closed doors, and Republican committeemen are preparing to fire some hot questions about alleged irregularities in lend-lease operations, including a charge that we purchased several merchant ships from Canada which were later given to the British.

Chairman Emory S. Land of the Maritime Commission has admitted this at a closed-door meeting of the House Merchant Marine Committee. Another charge to be fired at Stettinius is that we sent scarce farm implements to Britain while our own farmers were minus.

The meeting, however, will not be a one-way session. For the Lend-Lease boss has a surprise of his own in store for the committee. He plans to present details on "reciprocal" lend-lease—namely services we are getting from the British.

THE OTHER SIDE

The American public has heard little about this phase, but we have received considerable free aid from the British, including ships, ship repairs, barrage balloons for our coastal cities, anti-aircraft guns and several large naval bases in the war zone, completely built, equipped and paid for by the British.

The Britsh also have turned over to our forces in England, without cost, a huge air depot and an adjacent airdrome with an operating personnel of 5,000 workers paid by the British government.

In addition, Great Britain has built several large cantonments, storage buildings, and other facilities for our troops—all without cost to Uncle Sam.

Note: The President once compared lend-lease to supplying a hose to put out a fire in your neighbor's house. If the fire is extinguished, but the hose is destroyed, it is still a good investment because you prevent your own home from burning down.

Some few Washington bigwigs are careless about gasoline rationing, but they are exceptions. Most Washington officialdom is scrupulously careful.

DIET AND HEALTH

Does Eating Raw Eggs Interfere With Biotin?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ONE OF MY correspondents takes exception to an answer I gave the other day when I was asked whether an eggnog a day is effective in relieving a tired and worn-out feeling, because it has been said that raw eggs destroy vitamins. My answer was that eggs themselves are full of vitamins.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

My correspondent points out that biochemists have shown that there is an "egg white injury factor" and that biotin has a strong affinity for raw egg white. She says that dietitians were informed by a biochemist that they should tell their classes and patients that raw egg white can keep the body from absorbing biotin and that, therefore, raw egg white is not good as such, but should be cooked.

I am glad to make this letter public, although I have considerable reservations about the whole subject of the egg white injury factor and also about the great powers of biotin. Biotin is a growth-stimulating vitamin; its physiologic activity has been investigated mostly in the lower forms of plant and animal life.

Experiments With Rats

As to the egg white injury factor, experiments have suggested that when rats are kept on a diet containing uncooked egg white, they develop a characteristic syndrome known as "egg white injury." Continued feeding of this diet results in the death of the animal. It has been indicated that the injury produced is not due to the action of the egg white, but results from an inter-action of a protein present in egg white with the biotin of the diet. As a result the biotin is rendered unavailable to the animal and a biotin deficiency results, producing the typical "egg white injury syndrome."

This is all very well, but as I recently pointed out to a doctor, the human body is capable of a good many things which you wouldn't guess if you were just reading a single article in the Journal of Biological Chemistry. This particular doctor was worried about some patients who had had continued fever and who had not been able to eat very much for several weeks. He thought they must be just full of vitamin deficiencies and that their blood wouldn't coagulate. But it just so happened that they weren't full of vitamin deficiencies and their blood did coagulate.

Potency of Biotin

One biochemist stated that biotin is so powerful in its effects on life that it is felt in such minute amounts as one part in 500,000,000,000. Yet it can't overcome a little egg white?

Regarding egg white injury, there is one question I would like the biochemists to explain: before a chicken is hatched, it is in a state in which it is saturated with raw egg white. In fact, that is about the only kind of protein it gets, and I would like to see a newborn chicken suffering from the egg white injury syndrome. Also, weasels and others of that family, such as skunks, suck raw eggs a good deal, but I never heard of one with egg white injury. My acquaintance with skunks has impressed me with their insouciance and complete lack of vitamin deficiency.

Understand, I am not crabbing: just trying to adjust biochemics to nature. General Pershing said to some young officers, "If the landscape does not agree with the map you have drawn of it, consider the possibility that the landscape is correct."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. J. H.: Is insulin a cure for diabetes? Some people say it is a cure and others say emphatically there is no cure for diabetes.

Answer: The word "cure" means complete recovery due to the use of a certain remedy. In this sense insulin does not cure diabetes, nor does anything else. But insulin holds diabetes in control so that the dangerous condition of coma does not come on and nutrition is kept at a good level. For all practical purposes the diabetic taking insulin and a proper diet is just the same as a normal person.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

WHEN THE opportunity did present itself for Abby and Paige to return to Honolulu, it was by Clipper. As they hurriedly packed light baggage, in answer to a quick call, Paige remarked, "I hope my luck holds, at least until we take off. I have seen Eugenia but that one time, and that's been at least three weeks."

"And you won't." Abby stole a second from her work. "I had what is known as 'words' with Eugenia. I'm the only person who can call me homely and get by with it. San Francisco wasn't big enough for the two of us—as I pointed out to her." The white-haired woman smoothed the hips of her zebra-striped silk dress with motions as savage as her attack on the blond girl, then returned to the battle of stuffing too many clothes into one bag.

Soon she put on a brown Alaska seal coat over the ferocity of her zebra dress. Paige was elbowing her way into the gray-striped topcoat that matched her suit, the same traveling outfit she had worn when leaving with Rusty on the Mazatlan.

"Paige," blurted Abby, "I've said it before and I'm saying it again, for the last time, 'You don't HAVE to go with me."

"You need someone with you." To lessen the anxiety in the little woman's faded eyes the girl added, "Besides, I want to go—it'll be such fun to see Rusty. I want to watch him squirm." Abby Tyson made no answer.

It was difficult to believe, even when the Clipper was traveling very, very gently upward, that they were on their way to Honolulu. The place seemed isolated, inaccessible by what it had endured.

Gradually Abby began to lean back from her decidedly uncomfortable perch on the edge of her seat. "I wish I could decide if I like it up here. I'll admit the water doesn't seem so cold and wet from this height."

"That's right," agreed Paige. She chuckled. "And there is another advantage. If you're so scared you sleep in your clothes tonight, it will be for only one night instead of four as it was on the Lorelei. Pierre wouldn't have to go through so many fits."

For several minutes Abby was quiet except for her jaws, busy with chewing gum. Finally she said, "I wonder how soon we get fed?"

Paige laughed aloud. "You're beginning to like it here, Abby."

Restwick Carnes was flying also, in a private plane. The one he kept at his Kaneohe place. The one he had kept in the city had gone up in flames as the military planes had.

"Not that you would be allowed to fly even if it had not been destroyed," he had been told. "The armed forces must not be confused unnecessarily by unknown planes."

All the same, Rusty was in the air, for the first time since that fateful December 7. And it was glorious to be flying. That is, flying as he was, strictly for pleasure. It was glorious also, to be defying orders. They even wanted to take the sky away from him.

He intended to enjoy this freedom to the utmost. That was what flying should be. Freedom. Not a stilted martial pattern of many planes bent upon destruction. It was an escape, a place to go when you wanted to be even more important than Restwick Carnes III. It was where you went when you wanted to feel you owned the world. You could look down and see so much of it. That was the way Rusty felt about flying.

He headed higher into the sky, did several sharp turns, and then some dips, just to prove he really could fly. The trouble was, a guy like General Clemmons could make a young fellow wonder about himself. Rusty didn't like that. He increased his speed and climbed still higher. He began to circle, around and around, over his and Abby Tyson's plantations.

Yes, Restwick Carnes intended to enjoy this ride. He had had a hard time getting up. The plantation runway had been clotted with weeds and flowers and vines. All that interference had to be cleared and by only one boy. Other boys had been assigned temporarily to war duties. Just another example, Rusty thought furiously, of the accursed war ruining his life.

He turned his ship and flew toward the Pali. The wind, treacherous enough when one was on the ground, was even more dangerous in a plane. Rusty felt the little ship's body toss as if it were made of paper. He leaned to one side to peer down at that steep mountain and into the rocky wet valley below it. If a plane fell there it would be the same as dropping an egg into a rock garden. Suddenly he wondered into what sort of place Denison's plane had fallen.

The thought made him shiver. He remembered also standing at Eugenia's hotel windows after she had told him of Paige's past, remembered also, watching the planes out over the harbor. He remembered his certainty that Paige's Denison had fallen purposely; he remembered how intensely he had understood a man taking that way out if confronted with such a sorrow now. The situation was reversed. His Eugenia was the wicked one, wicked with a wickedness that chilled the blood.

Restwick Carnes' lungs gasped for air. He realized he had been holding his breath for several seconds. The palms, even the back of his hands, were wet. He felt as if something verminous were crawling along his spine. Fighting the battering wind, he nosed his little ship toward its home hangar.

Choppo's joyous yell greeted him when he landed before the plantation hangar. The youngster came running across the grass-covered field.

"Take me up this time, Rusty. Take me. Will you, huh?"

The man's hand clutched the the thatch of hair on Choppo's head so tightly that, for a second, tears were hard to control, but Choppo managed. The gaze he lifted to Restwick Carnes was dry. He did not repeat his pleading to be taken up. He just trailed at the man's feet, into the wide lanai, across the living room, on into a library where Rusty sat down behind an enormous desk.

He spoke to the child. "Choppo, I have something very important to do. I want you to pack some clothes and go with the houseboy to Denison Ware's." His voice was less strong. "I know how much you like Denison."

The boy's expression was a mixture of anticipation and dutiful loyalty. "Oh, I do, Rusty. I always have fun with him, but I wouldn't—gee, Rusty, I don't wanna leave you. You might need me."

"Not right now. Run along, Choppo. Pack your riding clothes. And hurry, because as soon as you've gone I have to go up again." He listened to the boy's footsteps across the floor. They made tapping sounds up the stairs.

Restwick Carnes reached for a shot-glass and poured himself a straight drink of Bourbon. He changed his mind and poured it into a highball glass, then picked up the bottle and added to it until the glass was three-fourths full. He filled it with plain water. He was glad he hadn't had a drink earlier in the day. There was something too warm and wonderful about a first drink. This was the moment for it.

He drank as if he were drinking water. A second time he filled his glass in the same manner. This time he walked to a mirror and looked at himself. Those sapphire-blue eyes were half frightened, half determined. The whiskey rolled around his heart in a devil-may-care warmth that comforted.

"Small detail!" muttered Restwick Carnes III, and drained his glass.

The Clipper landing was a matter of closed windows and many soldiers standing nearby. The days of leis and music were gone. Abby's chauffeur, in answer to her cable, was there. Not with her large limousine, but with a tiny coupe.

"Even so, madame, we're apt to have to get out and push—gas rationing, you know."

Abby Tyson paid little attention. She was too busy searching the crowd. "Where is Choppo?" And then she saw Denison Ware, standing beside his station wagon. "Where is Choppo?" she demanded of him. Her voice was alarmed.

He dashed toward her and gripped her arm. "Choppo is with me. He—" His dark eyes darted to Paige's face, tried to find the answer to a question not even worded. "Abby, Rusty went up in his plane yesterday. He had an accident—"

"But Rusty is a wonderful pilot! He wouldn't have an—" And then she knew. "Oh, Denison—oh, poor little Choppo!"

They both swerved to watch Paige. The girl walked to the small coupe and got in. Abby caught her chauffeur's eye and gestured to Denison Ware's station wagon. She climbed in beside Denison and they headed toward Kaneohe. Neither spoke for many minutes.

Finally Denison said, "Abby, Choppo thinks Rusty was doing something for the Army."

"I'll remember," the little woman said.

"And, Abby—" the dark-haired man reached over to grasp the hand that trembled like a leaf. "Children forget."

Abby was motionless for an instant and then she returned the touch of Denison Ware's hand. She even managed to turn and look at him with her brimming eyes.

"I know, dear. And," she consoled, "so do adults. So will Paige. She's not grieving because of love. It's a grief born of decency and a generous heart—just be patient, Denison. Just be patient."

Words of Wisdom

Time is the most undefinable yet paradoxical of things; the past is gone, the future has not come, and the present becomes the past even while we attempt to define it, and, like a flash of the lightning, at once exists and expires.—Colton.

Hints on Etiquette

At an hotel tea dance a young woman should wear a hat with a street-length dress.

Today's Horoscope

WORLD AT A GLANCE . . . .

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON—American and British abandonment of extra-territorial rights in China generally is described to the Occident as a great concession by the western countries to the Flowery Land in token of the formers' appreciation of the latter's gallant fight against the Japanese.

Charles P Stewart

Well, it's a fact that Chiang Kai-shek's Chungking government of today did want extra-territoriality ended.

That it originally was forced upon the Chinese from outside is entirely a wrong conclusion, however. It was an arrangement insisted on not only by the Chinese, but by other governments in the Near, Middle and Far Easts, as a condition for permitting foreigners to settle, live and transact business in their various midsts.

It prevailed in Turkey, for example, when I visited there just after the Abdul Hamid revolution.

Far from having imposed it upon a reluctant sultan, our diplomatic corps didn't like it. It involved a lot of work and was a nuisance to 'em. Nevertheless, they had it to bother with. The Turks wouldn't take it off our hands.

The Ottoman Empire wasn't so bad, to be sure, because we weren't sufficiently numerous there to be a serious pest. Along the Chinese coast, though, our traders were thick, and we had to keep order among 'em. And at our own expense, mind you. That was the beauty of it, from the extra-territorialized folk's standpoint.

Envoy's Headache

Constantinople was the Turks' capital in those days. Now it's changed its name to Istanbul and the governmental headquarters has moved to Ankara. But that's immaterial.

To me extra-territoriality was a new thing at the time, but I soon learned that I wasn't responsible, within our Yankee diplomatic limits, for much of anything, to anybody but my own ambassador. If I created a street disturbance, no doubt the local police would have pinched me, but only to have been turned over immediately to the U. S. embassy's custody.

"Suppose," I asked Louis Einstein, then our embassy's first secretary alongside the Bosporus, "that I killed a man. What would happen?"

"If you killed a Turk," said Louis, "I presume it would result in diplomatic complications, but if you killed nobody but an American, it would be up to the embassy to 'tend to you. We'd try you, and if we decided you needed to be executed, that also would be our own funeral; yours likewise."

But, as previously remarked, our American population in Turkey was trifing; too small to worry our representatives there. Our embassy and consulate kept matters in hand quite efficiently.

The idea is that these Orientals initially didn't care a cent's worth for our western presence among 'em. They were willing to let us come ashore and set up housekeeping, but not to accept any responsibility for our kind of inhabitants.

Accordingly, upon being externally approached for accommodations, their answer's been:

"Don't Bother Us"

"Anchor here if you like, but don't fret us any."

No, as I've said, Turkey was no serious problem; our embassy there dealt with it.

However, consider such a port as Shanghai—now occupied by the Japs.

In that city we've had, for more than a century, a "settlement" as American as New York or Chicago. We've policed it, with Yankee coppers. We've had our own courts there. They've been U. S. federal, indeed. You were tried federally, if it chanced to be for nothing more serious than intoxication. You were tried by a U. S. federal judge, no matter how trifling your alleged offense was.

If an American went on a toot, a United States judge passed on his case and, assuming his conviction, a local U. S. jail jailed him.

If socked on a trifing charge, we had a local coop to shut him up in.

If it happened to be something ferocious, he was committed to San Quentin, California.

That's what extra-territorial Occidental surrender implies in China.

Japan's different.

BLONDELL AND LADD

Joan Blondell, Alan Ladd and Laird Cregar are brought to the Radio Theatre in Cecil B. DeMille's adaptation of the gripping screen drama "This Gun For Hire." The broadcast will be heard Monday, January 25, at 9 p. m. over CBS.

"This Gun For Hire" gave Alan Ladd his first important screen role which resulted in his overnight success. He will play this same role in the Lux presentation, which will be his first Radio Theatre appearance—and his last for the duration. Only a few days after the broadcast, the young actor goes into service.

The story concerns a killer who has been double-crossed by the man who has hired him to murder. The killer sets out to avenge and meets the girl whom he later holds as hostage in a hideout as the police close in.

One of the most unusual crime dramas ever filmed, "This Gun For Hire" is a cold clinical analysis of the soul of a killer, crisply written with every last drop of drama drawn from each situation.

LIONEL WRITES MUSIC

Lionel Barrymore, who portrays the "Mayor of the Town" each Wednesday night, is hard at work on another musical composition for probable presentation by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra at the Hollywood Bowl this Summer. The work is as yet untitled. A group of Russian dances by Barrymore was presented at the Bowl last year.

POLL FOR DINAH

Dinah Shore, the Blue chain's blues songstress, this week won her third straight nationwide poll when she was voted first by a wide margin in the popular singers' category by radio editors of the nation in the New York World-Telegram poll. It was the second straight year Dinah has won the World-Telegram honor. Within the last month she has been voted top girl singer by Motion Picture Daily and Radio Daily, each polling the country's radio eds.

SPITALNY FEATURE

It will be a Phil Spitalny double feature at the Chicago Theatre in Chicago starting Thursday, when the "Hour of Charm" heads the stage bill accompanying the picture "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." The screen play also features the all-girl orchestra.

BRIEF RADIO NOTES

The United States Army made changes in the script of the Frank Crumit-Julia Sanderson quiz show Saturday over CBS, but the question of censorship never entered the picture. When the script was written, all three soldier contestants were privates, but Saul Richman was promoted to the rank of corporal on the day of the broadcast. Appropriate changes were made in the continuity.

Able to resume broadcast after an unexpected rally which precluded the necessity of an operation, Kate Smith will originate her Friday night series over CBS from the United States Maritime School, Sheepshead Bay, N. Y. this week.

Harry W. Flannery, author and radio commentator whose news analyses are broadcast by Columbia, this week added two new sponsors to his list.

Comic Cass Daley had a notable visitor her first day on the set at Paramount Studios for the new film, "Riding High." Her radio side-kick, Bing Crosby, also a Paramount member, stopped by to wish Cass well in the film.

BLONDELL AND LADD

Joan Blondell, Alan Ladd and Laird Cregar are brought to the Radio Theatre in Cecil B. DeMille's adaptation of the gripping screen drama "This Gun For Hire." The broadcast will be heard Monday, January 25, at 9 p. m. over CBS.

"This Gun For Hire" gave Alan Ladd his first important screen role which resulted in his overnight success. He will play this same role in the Lux presentation, which will be his first Radio Theatre appearance—and his last for the duration. Only a few days after the broadcast, the young actor goes into service.

The story concerns a killer who has been double-crossed by the man who has hired him to murder. The killer sets out to avenge and meets the girl whom he later holds as hostage in a hideout as the police close in.

One of the most unusual crime dramas ever filmed, "This Gun For Hire" is a cold clinical analysis of the soul of a killer, crisply written with every last drop of drama drawn from each situation.

LIONEL WRITES MUSIC

Lionel Barrymore, who portrays the "Mayor of the Town" each Wednesday night, is hard at work on another musical composition for probable presentation by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra at the Hollywood Bowl this Summer. The work is as yet untitled. A group of Russian dances by Barrymore was presented at the Bowl last year.

POLL FOR DINAH

Dinah Shore, the Blue chain's blues songstress, this week won her third straight nationwide poll when she was voted first by a wide margin in the popular singers' category by radio editors of the nation in the New York World-Telegram poll. It was the second straight year Dinah has won the World-Telegram honor. Within the last month she has been voted top girl singer by Motion Picture Daily and Radio Daily, each polling the country's radio eds.

SPITALNY FEATURE

It will be a Phil Spitalny double feature at the Chicago Theatre in Chicago starting Thursday, when the "Hour of Charm" heads the stage bill accompanying the picture "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." The screen play also features the all-girl orchestra.

BRIEF RADIO NOTES

The United States Army made changes in the script of the Frank Crumit-Julia Sanderson quiz show Saturday over CBS, but the question of censorship never entered the picture. When the script was written, all three soldier contestants were privates, but Saul Richman was promoted to the rank of corporal on the day of the broadcast. Appropriate changes were made in the continuity.

Able to resume broadcast after an unexpected rally which precluded the necessity of an operation, Kate Smith will originate her Friday night series over CBS from the United States Maritime School, Sheepshead Bay, N. Y. this week.

Harry W. Flannery, author and radio commentator whose news analyses are broadcast by Columbia, this week added two new sponsors to his list.

Comic Cass Daley had a notable visitor her first day on the set at Paramount Studios for the new film, "Riding High." Her radio side-kick, Bing Crosby, also a Paramount member, stopped by to wish Cass well in the film.

Appropriation Ordinance Approved by Council

DELAYED CHECKS DISTRIBUTED TO CITY EMPLOYES

Municipal Expense For Year Estimated At $108,921.31 Total

HOSPITAL PLAN SET

Steps Taken To Comply With Order Of State Health Board

Circleville municipal employes, including policemen, firemen, service department workers and all others, received their first pay checks since December 15 Thursday from Auditor Lillian Young after council, following a lengthy session, put its approval on the 1943 appropriations ordinance.

Miss Young has had the checks ready for two weeks, but could not issue them until council voted appropriations.

Under the ordinance the city will require $108,921.31 for operation through 1943, the figure being several thousand dollars higher than for 1942. Extra expense at Berger hospital where a nursery is being provided and additional appropriation for special men for the police department boosting the total.

Appropriations Listed

Appropriation for the general fund provides the bulk of the measure, this amount being $63,960.52. From the general fund are paid firemen, policemen, salaries of all employes included elected officials, civil service commission, safety and service departments, health department, street lights including $2,400 set aside for an old street lighting bill, sewers and drainage, public building, parking meters and Berger hospital.

Other appropriations include sewage disposal plant, $12,175.79; public library, $10,275; care of old cemetery, $50; street maintenance and repair, from motor vehicle license tax, $6,400; street maintenance and repair, from gasoline tax, $11,450; fire department pension fund, $1,505; police pension fund, $2,105.

Preparation of a nursery at Berger hospital is under way, this division of the hospital to be made a separate part from the delivery room. At present, newly-born babies are being kept in the delivery room contrary to state health department regulations.

Plan For Hospital

Council's hospital committee, which includes W. E. Wallace, chairman, George L. Crites and Frank A. Lynch, under authority granted by other members of council, have purchased necessary fixtures and equipment for a complete nursery. The purchases were made with assistance from Dr. R. H. Markwith and Mrs. Dorothy Reeder of the state health office.

Under the program set up by council and approved by the health office, the nursery will be a complete one, and when work is finished and inspected will likely rate Circleville's municipal hospital an A-1 rating on the state health office's records.

Previously the health department had threatened to blacklist Berger hospital unless something was done.

Another additional expense for the hospital during 1943 will be addition of two registered nurses, if they can be found, and a nurse's aide. Money was set aside in the appropriations bill for employment of three persons. Whether additional help can be obtained isn't certain, but an effort will be made to find more employes.

Council's hospital committee plans to ask the Pickaway county Medical Society to meet with it probably next week to work out a more definite system of cooperation so far as Berger hospital operation is concerned. Councilmen say that several matters need to be discussed.

Appropriation for special police will amount to $900 for the year, this figure being several hundred dollars more than usual. Police Chief W. F. McCrady told council that he needs extra men at times when members of the regular force are ill or on leave. The chief was granted the extra money after he told council he would use it only when necessary.

NUMBER THREE GAS STAMP DIES AT MIDNIGHT

Motorists driving with basic A book rationing coupons were warned Thursday to dispose of any or all of the Number 3 stamps, worth four gallons of gasoline, remaining in their books.

The No. 3 stamp is good only through January 21. After midnight tonight stamp No. 4 will be in effect.

No stamps marked No. 3 can be cashed after Thursday, their validity ending at midnight January 21.

Stamps in B and C books are good for periods noted on the front of such books.

Rationing office has been informed that in some instances service station operators have permitted drivers to cash stamps No. 4 and 5 in some intances No. 6. This is wrong, the office points out, declaring that the books now held by motorists must last until mid-July. If all gasoline coupons are used before that date, the motorist will be without fuel.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Court. In addition, Stone is one of the walkingest members of the Court.

The White House uses 11 cars now, against 15 a year ago, and these include trucks for the White House mail, as well as cars for the President and staff. White House Secretary Marvin McIntyre now rides to work in a Ford instead of a Packard.

Vice President Henry Wallace last Fall abandoned his 16-cylinder limousine in favor of a humble five passenger sedan. Every morning he walks the five miles from the Wardman Park Hotel to the Capitol, and rides home in the evening.

Speaker Sam Rayburn uses his official car sparingly. He often walks from his apartment on Du-Pont Circle to Seventh St., where he takes a street car to the Capitol.

Senator Thomas of Oklahoma gets to work on foot or by bus. The other day a Capitol clerk gave him a lift from a bus stop on Sixteenth Street.

Approximately twenty Congressional cars are jacked up in the Senate Garage, to be unused as long as gas and tires are short.

Milo Perkins, chief of the Board of Economic Warfare, shuns the use of his official car in driving from home to office. Instead, he has joined a car pool with six other BEW members who live in the same section.

Note: Taking a bus to work is no novelty for Arkansas Senator Hattie Caraway, who has been doing it for years.

ARAB UNREST AGAINST U. S.

Although the French political situation in North Africa has made the headlines, the Arab situation is almost worse. Cables say flatly that unless the Arabs get food and clothing, there will be trouble.

German broadcasts are responsible for the unrest. Before the invasion, the German radio told the Arabs that food and clothing shortages were the result of the British blockade.

After the invasion, the German radio declared that "the invading (U. S.) forces are feasting upon the countryside like a horde of locusts."

But discounting the propaganda, there are severe shortages of three articles indispensable to the Arabs—tea, sugar, and cotton cloth. To the Arabs, who place great faith in ritual, the severest blow is lack of cotton cloth for shrouds for the dead.

And since the Arabs greatly admire the strong, they fail to understand why the "great United States" is unable to supply their simple wants.

TANKS AND CLOTHING

For relief cases, food and clothing are already being shipped. But it is a terrific problem, extending to the population of 17,000,000 Arabs in the three states. —Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia. Most Arabs have money to buy provisions—but there are no provisions.

In fact, the native workmen employed by the U. S. Army are asking payment in food and clothing. Money is of no use.

Both Gen. Eisenhower and State Department's Robert Murphy agree that supplies must be rushed. They have even gone so far as to suggest that supply ships could fill in the corners among tanks, guns and munitions with food and clothing. Eisenhower estimates that 40,000 tons of clothing a month could be shipped in this way, without adding a ship to the convoys.

But when the ships arrive, he has another problem, for the port facilities are overtaxed, and even after a ship has passed through sub-infested waters, it may have to lie in port for days before it can get to a dock.

Business men during 1943 are taking over the college custom of wearing sweaters instead of vests, according to a New York clothier. Fuel oil rationing and a growing trend to increased comfort are the chief causes, it is stated.

"It Takes Both"

It takes both . . . a Romeo and a Juliet to enact the famous love scene from the Shakespeare play. It takes both . . . War Bonds and Taxes to win this war . . . War Bonds and Taxes are the price we must pay for a Victory over the Axis powers.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Court. In addition, Stone is one of the walkingest members of the Court.

The White House uses 11 cars now, against 15 a year ago, and these include trucks for the White House mail, as well as cars for the President and staff. White House Secretary Marvin McIntyre now rides to work in a Ford instead of a Packard.

Vice President Henry Wallace last Fall abandoned his 16-cylinder limousine in favor of a humble five passenger sedan. Every morning he walks the five miles from the Wardman Park Hotel to the Capitol, and rides home in the evening.

Speaker Sam Rayburn uses his official car sparingly. He often walks from his apartment on Du-Pont Circle to Seventh St., where he takes a street car to the Capitol.

Senator Thomas of Oklahoma gets to work on foot or by bus. The other day a Capitol clerk gave him a lift from a bus stop on Sixteenth Street.

Approximately twenty Congressional cars are jacked up in the Senate Garage, to be unused as long as gas and tires are short.

Milo Perkins, chief of the Board of Economic Warfare, shuns the use of his official car in driving from home to office. Instead, he has joined a car pool with six other BEW members who live in the same section.

Note: Taking a bus to work is no novelty for Arkansas Senator Hattie Caraway, who has been doing it for years.

ARAB UNREST AGAINST U. S.

Although the French political situation in North Africa has made the headlines, the Arab situation is almost worse. Cables say flatly that unless the Arabs get food and clothing, there will be trouble.

German broadcasts are responsible for the unrest. Before the invasion, the German radio told the Arabs that food and clothing shortages were the result of the British blockade.

After the invasion, the German radio declared that "the invading (U. S.) forces are feasting upon the countryside like a horde of locusts."

But discounting the propaganda, there are severe shortages of three articles indispensable to the Arabs—tea, sugar, and cotton cloth. To the Arabs, who place great faith in ritual, the severest blow is lack of cotton cloth for shrouds for the dead.

And since the Arabs greatly admire the strong, they fail to understand why the "great United States" is unable to supply their simple wants.

TANKS AND CLOTHING

For relief cases, food and clothing are already being shipped. But it is a terrific problem, extending to the population of 17,000,000 Arabs in the three states.—Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia. Most Arabs have money to buy provisions—but there are no provisions.

In fact, the native workmen employed by the U. S. Army are asking payment in food and clothing. Money is of no use.

Both Gen. Eisenhower and State Department's Robert Murphy agree that supplies must be rushed. They have even gone so far as to suggest that supply ships could fill in the corners among tanks, guns and munitions with food and clothing. Eisenhower estimates that 40,000 tons of clothing a month could be shipped in this way, without adding a ship to the convoys.

But when the ships arrive, he has another problem, for the port facilities are overtaxed, and even after a ship has passed through sub-infested waters, it may have to lie in port for days before it can get to a dock.

The city of Reno, Nev., is farther west than Los Angeles, Cal.
